N.Y. Times, Jack Anderson Awarded Pulitzer Prizes

NEW YORK (AP) — After unprecedented debate, trustees of Columbia University awarded the 1972 Pulitzer prizes Monday, including a public service award to the New York Times for its publication of the Pentagon papers.

"Had the selections been those of the trustees alone, certain of the recipients would not have been chosen," the trustees said in an extra-ordinary covering letter accompanying the announcement of awards.

The trustees expressed "deep reservations about the timeliness and suitability of certain of the journalism awards."

The statement did not specify which recipients were referred to.

The national reporting award went to columnist Jack Anderson for his reporting American secret papers in the American decision-making during the Indian-Pakistani war of 1971, which aroused almost as much controversy as the Pentagon papers' publication.

For the first time since 1968, there was no Pulitzer award for drama this year.

The fiction prize went to "Angle of Repose," by Wallace E. Stegner, a professor of English at Stanford University, one of two faculty members of that West Coast school winning arts awards.

The Pulitzer for distinguished biography was awarded to Joseph P. Lash for his "Eleanor and Franklin." He was a friend of the late first lady, Eleanor Roosevelt.

"Stilwell and the American Experience in China," won Barbara Tuchman her second Pulitzer prize for general non-fiction. She won the award in that category also in 1963 for "The Guns of August."

The history prize was awarded Carl N. Degler for "Neither Black nor White." He is also a Stanford University professor in the history department. The book examines slavery in the United States.

James Wright, a professor of English at Hunter College of New York City won the poetry prize with his "Collected Poems."

The prize for music went to Jacob Druckman of New York's Juilliard School of Music for his orchestral piece, "Windows," premiered last March 16 by the Chicago symphony.

Each prize category in journalism and arts carries a $1,000 prize, to be divided when there are multiple winners. The meritorious service award to a newspaper is represented by a gold medal.

Neil Sheehan, the New York Times reporter who obtained the Pentagon papers, was not personally cited by the Pulitzer award group. It was learned the judges expressed awareness that 44 Times editors, writers, reporters and researchers worked on the project for four months before publication. See PULITZER, Page 2

Council Accepts Offer To Pave S. Carver St.

Warren Borough Council met in special session Monday evening to unanimously accept the offer of three lower eastside industrialists to pave South Carver st. between Lexington ave. and the Penn-Central railroad tracks.

The street, which is currently brick surfaced, has been the center of controversy for close to a year—ever since Anthony J. Massa of 17 S. Carver asked council to ease the truck traffic problem. He said as early as last June that the noise created by the thundering trucks was creating turmoil in his neighborhood. Everything, he said, was covered with dust.

Council, after weeks of inactivity, finally decided to ask the industrialists of the area to travel on alternate streets. They took this action only after Massa and several of his neighbors staged a protest by stopping the trucks and sweeping the grime off their street, on July 23.

In March of this year councilman Tony Tomassoni, who lives on S. South st., urged council to do something about the problem before the good weather set in and the traffic increased.

Following their April 24 meeting council met informally to hear the industrialists' offer to pave the street.

The three firms are W. Crossett, Inc., which will provide the asphalt material for the street, Harmon Brothers Ready-Mix, which will truck in the paving materials, and Interstate Amestite, which will provide the aggregate necessary for the job as well as conduct the surfacing of the street.

The meeting Monday was called to publicly accept the paving offer, a requirement of the Borough Code.

Explorers Learn Court Procedure

The YMCA Explorer specialty group in law enforcement, sponsored by the Warren Borough Police Department, in conjunction with the Complanter Council, Boy Scouts of America, toured the county court house Monday, Law Day, and gained an insight into court proceedings as well as the many other operations carried on there. Patrolman Jim Tenney, advisor to the group, was in charge of the tour and President Judge Robert L. Wolfe, shown on the bench, briefed the group on legal proceedings. The group meets every other Thursday at various law enforcement agencies within the county to study their functions. Career guidance, experience and practical application of law enforcement jobs are the motivating principals of the group. A special committee consisting of Police Chief Bernie Winegardner, Sgt. Willard Zerbe and Patrolman Tenney, supervises the group's programs. (Photo by Mansfield)

Quang Tri Falls To Hanoi, Major Triumph For VC

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese abandoned Quang Tri on Monday, giving the Communist command control of a broad strip of strategic territory just below the demilitarized zone and a springboard for attacks deep into the South—possibly against Hue.

The Quang Tri loss, Hanoi's first major triumph in the 33-day-old offensive, was accompanied by these developments in other parts of South Vietnam:

—A large area along the central coast, with a population of 200,000 and an important rice crop, fell to enemy control.

—The North Vietnamese increased pressure on the provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

—Saigonese began to feel their first twitches of war nerves in the offensive as some officials predicted possible rocket attacks on the capital itself.

Quang Tri became the first South Vietnamese provincial capital to fall in the offensive that began March 30 with a North Vietnamese stab across the demilitarized zone.

Allied officials believe the Communist command seeks to take over the two northernmost provinces of South Vietnam to give Hanoi and the Viet Cong bargaining power at the peace

HUD Officials To Inspect Elderly Housing Site

By BOB CLEVER

HUD officials will visit Warren within the next week or 10 days to inspect the site on Oak st. of the proposed 160-unit high rise for the elderly, according to a spokesman for the developer.

The Warren County Housing Authority also learned last night at its regular meeting at the court house that action will be taken May 15 by the borough on the Whitaker Corporation's request for zoning variances.

The authority continued its discussion with Jack Jordan of Whitaker of sites for a low income housing project in the county.

Jordan told the authority that Whitaker now has fully submitted the elderly proposal to HUD and that Warren Napier of the Pittsburgh office will meet with them to tour the site and discuss the plans they already have approved.

The housing project will be the first to be approved under the Lease-It program in Pennsylvania.

Jordan asked that authority members be present May 15 when Warren Borough council acts on Whitaker's request for variances at the Oak st. site. The developer has requested a variance for density, height and parking.

The authority members established priorities with Jordan on three sites under study. See HOUSING, Page 2

Mental Health Membership Drive Opens In County Today

The annual membership drive of Warren County Mental Health association opened today. Some 300 letters were in the mail to urge former members to renew, and to welcome new ones.

"Our letters cannot reach everyone who would like this cause to grow," said Myron H. Latimer Jr., chairman of the drive. "We hope many more will join us. With an enthusiastic membership we can continue to build a good climate for mental health in Warren County."

The public is invited to the group's annual meeting, which is set for Wednesday, May 17, at 8 p.m. at the YWCA. A special program on one of Warren County's mental health problems, alcoholism, is planned.

Widespread support for many aids to good mental health has been forthcoming from the group since its founding here about five years ago.

One of the most popular accomplishments has been the list of helpful talks mailed to clubs and civic groups. A variety of topics are offered by the association's Public Information committee. Booklets of use to those attending are often given out at the close of the talks.

The group's Childrens committee works with the county school district in spreading word to teachers and parents about the school mental health consultation team.

Warren's two psychiatrists in private practice were encouraged by the mental health association to open their practices here. Also, the fact that the community has a walk-in mental health clinic at 216 Liberty st. reflects many months of volunteer lobbying for state funds to run it.

The association is active in easing the way for State hospital patients. Its Patient Services committee provides a social event every month, plus transportation to clinic appointments. The annual picnic for Warren patients is a big event each summer.

Latimer urged Warren County citizens to show their support for the work of the association by mailing dues to Post Office Box 543. Dues for single memberships are $2, and are $10 or more from contributing members.

U.S.-Soviet Missile-Curb Agreement Possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said Monday that President Nixon has had recent secret exchanges with Soviet Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev which Nixon believes have substantially increased the possibility of a U.S.-Soviet missile-curb agreement.

Nixon has ordered Ambassador Gerard C. Smith, top U.S. negotiator at the U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation talks, to return to the Helsinki negotiations with new instructions.

The President was reported confident that the Soviet envoy to the SALT parley, Vladimir Semenov, also will receive from his government new instructions which "can lead to an agreement which is mutually acceptable to both sides."

Presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler announced this following a one-hour Nixon session with Smith and top administration diplomatic, military and intelligence officers.

Smith headed back to Helsinki Monday night, having arrived for Washington consultations last Wednesday.

Ziegler did not go into any details of the prospective U.S.-Soviet accord or say whether it would be reached before, during or after Nixon's May 22-29 visit to the Soviet Union.

The presidential spokesman said that a major advance toward a strategic-arms-limitation agreement was scored in the Nixon-Brezhnev exchanges.

They were carried on mainly through written messages, supplementing Henry A. Kissinger's secret talks with the Soviet leader in Moscow April 20-24.

Ziegler said this "relates to a broadening of the scope of an offensive freeze."

These words left an implication that Moscow and Washington may be including submarine missiles as part of an initial SALT agreement.

It has already been agreed in principle that a SALT accord would include both defensive and offensive strategic weapons.

The SALT negotiators have worked out proposed limitations to cover antiballistic missiles—ABMs—and land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles of both sides. But whether underwater missiles would be included has been one of the major issues in the recent negotiating rounds.

The White House disclosure of Nixon-Brezhnev secret exchanges concerning the SALT issue followed other recent disclosures of Nixon communications with the Soviet chief on other issues, too. Kissinger ranged over the strategic arms matter during his Moscow discussions, which also dealt with Vietnam.

Ziegler said, however, that "we have never associated the negotiations in Helsinki with what happens in Vietnam."

Government Lifts Pay, Price Controls From Millions Of Small Businesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government Monday lifted pay and price controls from millions of small businesses and small governmental units.

It also tightened its grip on medium-size builders and hospitals, and concentrated more of its controls manpower on big businesses and big unions.

Director Donald Rumsfeld of the Cost of Living Council said the changes are designed to make controls work better by cutting red tape.

He said controls will stay in effect for the rest of the economy until they work, and declined to predict when they would be ended.

The council removed both pay and price controls generally from businesses and local governmental units with 60 or fewer employees.

However, unions and firms of whatever size in the health and construction industries remain subject to controls because their prices have risen far faster than others.

Also, rent controls remain in effect for landlords not exempted earlier.

The council earlier had removed controls from small retail firms and from workers earning less than $1.90 an hour.

All told, the council now has lifted price controls from a total of 6.5 million firms accounting for 28 per cent of the nation's sales dollars. Wage controls have been removed from 19 million workers making up 26 per cent of all workers drawing paychecks.

Pay controls also are gone from 67,500 small counties and towns with a total 378,000 employees, which is 83 per cent of all local governments but only 7 per cent of all local government workers. Local taxes never have been controlled.

Rumsfeld said business competition will tend to keep down

Soviets May Borrow Money From U.S. Banks

NEW YORK (AP) — The Soviet Union is considering borrowing from U.S. banks to buy machinery in the United States, banking circles said Monday.

The loans, if made, would mark a major change in financial policy for both the banks and the Soviet government. In the past, the Russians have sold gold as necessary to pay for imports of grain from Canada.

"But they are learning how to use their finances," one banker from outside New York commented. "By buying machinery on borrowed money, they don't have to pay back the money until the machinery is paying off by increased production."

Bankers said that the first approaches to the Russians were made by some U.S. banks and that others, including some of the major New York ones, now are interested in the possibility. An interest rate of the U.S. prime rate plus 3/4 of 1 per cent has been discussed, although the Russians have objected to this level.

The U.S. prime rate is the interest charged a bank's best customers. A rate 3/4 of one per cent above the prime was described by one banker as "very good rate indeed". The American prime now is 5 1/4 per cent, so on the basis of that, the Russians would be paying 6 per cent. This is quite high for a government loan.

So far as could be learned, no loan has been finally agreed upon. There was no indication of how much money might be involved, but a single bank is known to be talking about $4.5 million dollars.

Dr. Mohr Named WAHS Commencement Speaker

Dr. Scott Chalmers Mohr, an honors graduate in 1958 from Warren Area High School, will be the commencement speaker there on May 31, 1972.

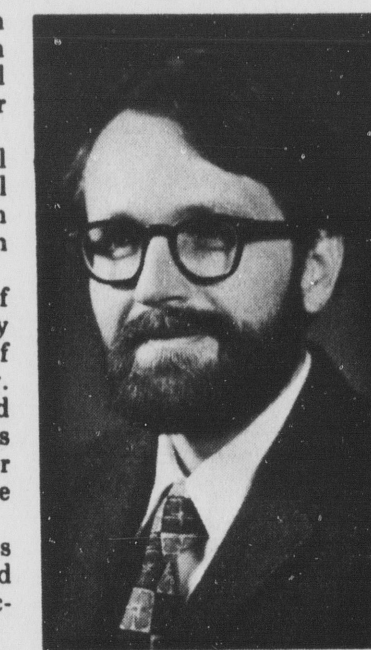

He graduated a National Merit Scholar from high school and summa cum laude from Williams College, Mass., in 1962.

The 31-year-old native of Jamestown, N.Y. is presently assistant professor of chemistry, Boston University. He is a son of L. Elbert and Margaret C. Mohr and was married in 1964 to the former Barbara Haupt. They have one child.

Mohr received his master's in chemistry from Harvard University in 1966 and his doctor's degree there in 1968.

He was a National Science Foundation Fellow 1962-64; Danforth Fellow, 1962-68; N.I.H. Fellow 1968-69; is a Phi Beta Kappa member, 1961 and Sigma Xi, 1971. He is a member of Gargoyles, the senior honor society of Williams College and while attending there he won the J. Fitch King Chemistry Prize and Freshman History Prize.

He was employed during the summer of 1959 as a metallurgy lab technician at National Forge Co., Irvine. He was an NSF summer undergraduate research participant at Case Institute in 1961; worked the summer of 1962 at Max-Planck-Institut fur

Refugees Jamming Roads To Escape Fighting Areas

SAIGON (AP) — More than 350,000 refugees are on the roads of South Vietnam, seeking escape from the thunderous fighting in the northern provinces and central highlands. American advisers in Saigon reported nearly a quarter of a million refugees are on the move trying to get to Hue and then to Da Nang from Quang Tri, the northernmost province capital abandoned Monday by South Vietnamese troops. About 5,000 have boarded boats at Tam My, near Hue, to get to Da Nang by sea.

In coastal Binh Dinh, the nation's most populous province, welfare officials said there "has been so much fighting the people don't know which way to run." They estimated the flow of refugees on foot, by truck, on rickety buses and motor bikes at 35,000, mostly from An Nhn and Binh Khe.

Perhaps another 37,000 out of Hoai An, now in enemy hands, had not made it so far to Qui Nhon.

For the first time in more than two weeks, a rice drop was made on An Loc, the embattled provincial capital in the rubber plantation country 60 miles north of Saigon.

"But," said one social worker, "we don't expect there'll be much of a refugee problem to worry about by the end of the week. The city has taken a fearful artillery pounding."

War victims trying to flee the enemy columns moving on the central highlands capital of Kontum from three directions were bottled up along Highway 14 by sporadic action in the Pleiku Pass, leading to Pleiku City.

A welfare worker just back from Kontum reported a trickle of families, carrying everything they had on their backs, were braving the pass, almost oblivious of the sniper fire and whoosh of mortar rounds.

With all of the northern part of Binh Dinh Province and its recently harvested rice crop in enemy hands, welfare workers were beginning to worry about the availability of food supplies in the coastal areas to the south.

The roads were still open in government-held areas for trucking in food and the Vietnamese air force has flown some rice in to temporary refugee settlements and stopoff points along the route to Qui talks in Paris.

Several thousand South Vietnamese troops were trying to battle their way south from Quang Tri, capital of the province of the same name, late Monday after efforts to defend the city were officially abandoned.

Field reports said at least 20 American field advisers were with them, having volunteered to stay with their units as 80 other Americans and 49 South Vietnamese were extracted in a daring helicopter rescue operation.

A U.S. bomber, flying with the helicopters to suppress ground fire, and a forward observer plane were shot down during the rescue. The jet pilot was picked up; the fate of the second was unknown.

The loss of its northernmost provincial capital was the most stunning setback yet for South Vietnam in the North Vietnamese offensive. The enemy now has seized control of all territory up to 27 miles south of the demilitarized zone.

The loss of Quang Tri immediately increased the threat to Hue, the former imperial capital 32 miles farther south. Like Quang Tri, Hue is believed to be marked as a primary target of Hanoi's offensive.

The northernmost point of government control after Quang Tri's abandonment was a marine position on Highway 1, eight miles south of that city and 24 miles north of Hue. Associated Press correspondent Holger Jensen reported from Hue that the first of the Quang Tri defenders had reached the line after fighting past North Vietnamese forces controlling the sandy coastal dunes area south of the abandoned city.

Comments Invited On Proposed Pa. Gas Co. Line Under River

The Corps of Engineers has called for comments and written statements on a Pennsylvania Gas Company proposal to lay a 10-inch gas line under the Allegheny River. The line would serve the Pennsylvania Electric Company generating station at Starbrick.

The Corps will accept statements until the close of business May 25, 1972. These will be made part of the records and will be considered in determining whether it would be in the best public interest to grant the permit.

The proposed work would consist of a 10-inch gas line buried a minimum of four feet below the river bed. A 10-inch plug valve would be positioned 435 feet north of the river near the plant and one would be positioned 3,130 feet south of the river.

A Pennsylvania Gas Company spokesman indicated the project may be delayed because of the present gas shortage.

The work has been certified by the Pennsylvania Dept. of Environmental Resources.

The Corps will make the determination as to whether a permit will be issued based on an evaluation of all relevant factors. These factors include the effect of the proposed work on navigation, fish and wildlife, water quality, economics, conservation, aesthetics, recreation, water supply, flood damage prevention, ecosystems and the needs and welfare of the people in general.

Controls

prices and wages of the exempted firms. He said the council decided that controlling them directly took more manpower than it is worth.

He said also the government will keep an eye on exempted sectors of the economy and could re-impose controls if necessary. "We expect responsible behavior by the firms that are being exempted by this decision," he said.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the congressional Joint Economic Committee, said the exemptions are a move in the right direction. The committee has urged that controls be applied only to the largest businesses and unions, and to some smaller ones, including those in the construction trades.

Hoover Prepared Secret Sex Memos For Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover "happily prepared secret memos" about the sex lives of public figures for Lyndon B. Johnson's presidential bedtime reading, columnist Jack Anderson testified Monday.

Testifying under oath at a House Government Information Subcommittee hearing into executive branch secrecy practices, Anderson said he has seen FBI sex reports.

During secret probes of prominent Americans, Anderson said, "their sex lives, drinking habits and personal affairs have come under FBI scrutiny, although the FBI has no jurisdiction nor justification for this kind of snooping."

"A love affair, no matter how sordid, is no business of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Yet FBI chief J. Edgar Hoover has demonstrated an intense interest in who is sleeping with whom in Washington," Anderson said.

"President Johnson was one White House occupant who had a fine appreciation for stories about the extracurricular love lives of public figures," the columnist said. "Hoover happily prepared secret memos, loaded with intimate details about the personal affairs of the high and mighty, for the President's bedtime reading."

Johnson and the FBI had no comment on Anderson's testimony.

At the hearing Anderson mentioned no names of those investigated. When contacted by newsmen, Anderson said he had seen such a report on the Rev. Martin Luther King, slain civil-rights leader.

Anderson said Hoover signed the reports, "and my White House sources told me the President used to enjoy reading them." But Anderson said they are not furnished to the White House now because President Nixon is not interested in reading them.

Anderson urged an end to "massive overclassification," and said there should be a law to declassify automatically all documents after two years.

He added: "The executive branch should be required to explain and to justify any secrets it wished to continue beyond two years. The final decision should be made by a national security commission, with representatives from Congress, the executive, the press and the public."

Two Youths Die, One Injured In Car Accident

RIDGWAY — Two Ridgway youths were killed and a third injured early Saturday morning in a one-car accident on Route 219, North Broad st.

Dead are Alan Titchner, 20 of 820 N. Broad st., the driver, and David Harris, 17, of Clark st. Titchner suffered a fractured neck and internal injuries, and Harris sustained a fractured neck and skull fracture, according to Ridgway borough police. Both were dead on arrival at Elk County General Hospital.

The third occupant of the vehicle, Michael Tettis, 19, of 520 N. Broad st., was listed in fair condition at the hospital. He suffered multiple lacerations, concussions and bruises in the mishap.

Borough police who investigated the accident, reported the car left the road and traveled about 125 feet before striking the highway-divider guard rail. The vehicle was demolished.

Pittsburgh Jury Duty Possible

"Periscope" was apparently in error Monday morning when it reported that individuals from Warren County could not be summoned for federal jury duty in Pittsburgh.

While the odds may be slim, a Warren area man was called for just such jury duty and remains on call for 18 months. George Wagner, RD 1, Clarendon, has already served three days on a federal grand jury panel in Pittsburgh and reports he gets $20 per day plus mileage.

According to Wagner, persons fill out a questionnaire pertaining to federal jury service and returns it to Erie, where federal court also sits. The person's name is placed in the jury wheel where a certain number of potential jurors are drawn to serve in Pittsburgh. These names then go into the jury wheel in that city.

Housing

for the 60-units of low income housing for which application already has been made.

Jordan said his company continues to work with lawyers on both sides to determine a non-profit agency to act as agents for the sale of bonds for the elderly and low income projects.

He said that although he had no preliminary plans to present at last night's meeting, no time was being lost in getting the family units on the drawing board. He said that the company architect was working directly with HUD and that an outside firm had not yet been given the job. He said he felt "better time could be made" if Whitaker's architect stayed with the job full time for as long as possible.

Jordan said that HUD funds did not yet include monies to cover the cost of an architect inspector on the job site. He said he hopes legislators will move to correct this situation for the protection of housing authorities. Housing authority members said they agreed with this thinking.

Four Nabbed As Pushers In Corry Area

CORRY — Four suspected drug pushers were picked up in Corry Friday morning as a wave of drug raids blanketed the western part of the state beginning Thursday morning and ending here today.

Three others are being sought by state police and Corry city police. Warrants have been issued for their arrest.

In Corry, the raid centered on a house at 712 West Main st. where Maurice Gjertson, 19, listed as the tenant was picked up.

Also netted in the area raids were Joseph Hutchinson, 21, of Elgin, picked up at his home; Edwin Israelson, 22, of Erie, apprehended in Union City and a juvenile Corry girl picked up at her home here.

Hutchinson, Gjertson and Israelson were arraigned before District Justice Porter Auer and released on $2,500 bond each. The juvenile girl was released to her parents.

State Police Issue Report For April

Sergeant Edward S. Pasi, officer-in-charge of the Warren substation of Troop E, state police, returned the following report for his unit for the month of April:

Total founded cases, 37; total persons arrested, 76, and cases cleared, 15.

In the traffic department, Sgt. Pasi reported 32 traffic accidents for the month; no fatalities; 234 traffic arrests made and 18 persons injured in traffic accidents.

Rig Fails To Make Grade

A truck-tractor flatbed rig loaded with logs failed to make the grade at Roystone Hill, Route 6 at about 11 a.m. Monday and drifted backward down the hill and through the guard rails and partially over an embankment. State trooper Louis Dussia, who investigated, said the operator, Lawrence E. Tudor of Chancellors Valley was unhurt. He estimated $5,000 damage to the rig. The logs spilled off when the eastbound vehicle went through the rails about four miles east of Sheffield. (Photo by Mansfield)

To Provide More Parking Space

North Warren Volunteer Fire Dept. has purchased the home and property of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Andereg, 2 Main st., North Warren, which adjoins the fire hall. When the expansion and new building program begins in the spring of 1973, the property will be converted into additional parking space. The department's delayed fund drive is scheduled

Youngsville Garbage Collection Back To Normal By Wednesday

By FRANCES RHODES
YOUNGVILLE — Borough Manager George Probst said at Youngsville Borough council meeting last night that delays in borough garbage collection, dating from last Thursday, were due to a broken jack shaft on the packer truck. The vehicle was repaired on Friday at a cost expected to be between $1-$1,200.

The sanitation department crew worked Saturday and Monday to bring garbage collections up to date. The schedule should be back to normal by Wednesday, said Probst. The repair costs would "hurt" the borough's financial picture for the year, the borough manager said.

A review of a newly-instituted quarterly budget control report indicated some areas where spending has already exceeded the annual budget allocation. Hoses for the fire department, for which $400 was allocated, cost $410.35.

Because of February's heavy storms, there was a figure of $932.75 for snow removal during the first quarter. It could mean trouble in the final quarter if there were heavy snows again then, said Probst; since only $800 is allocated for the entire year. Office supplies credited to the water account overran the budget allotment by $7.58.

Some discussion centered around the effect of anticipated increased electricity costs, arising from the position of the Pennsylvania Electric Co. to the PUC for rate increases. Probst said it appeared that street lighting would cost an extra $1187—about a 14 per cent increase; and $1900 more would be added to the water and sewer department accounts. He said he did not yet have figures for the fire hall and borough Maintenance Department estimated increases. The street lighting bill would also be increased as the result of a decision to place three new street lights on Collector st.

A request for three-hour restricted parking was read from Mrs. Marian Bailey, operator of a beauty shop on Highland ave. She sought to prevent all-day parking by people from out of town who leave their own vehicles in front of her premises and pick up rides at the nearby Highland ave. intersection with West Main st. Mrs. Bailey said her customers are inconvenienced by the all-day parkers.

Probst pointed out that approval for a parking restriction would have to be obtained from the state highway department. A motion to seek the approval was defeated, but Mrs. Bailey's request was referred to the Parking Committee.

The borough police chief was instructed to seek the cooperation of the all-day parkers in the meantime to discontinue their practice.

The new police chief, David Brown, presented his first report covering items such as door checks (30—with one open door); penal code arrests (10); complaints (46); and parking meter receipts ($104.86).

Some discussion centered around a new local problem—the vandalism of parking meters. Three have been torn up recently, the coin boxes smashed open and the equipment abandoned. The police department is investigating the occurrences and will investigate the experience of other communities in similar incidents.

David Horner Appointed Child Welfare Director

The Warren County Commissioners Monday morning appointed David Horner as acting director of Child Welfare Services.

Horner, who has been employed with Child Welfare for nearly eight years, replaces William Ferry, who resigned from the post last week.

The commissioners will, in the meantime, seek a qualified full-time director. The county office, under new regulations, is small enough that a case worker with a B.S. degree and one year in an advisory capacity would meet requirements.

The Warren County Soil and Water Conservation District is promoting special religious observances in recognition of the dependency and responsibility of urban, as well as rural people for proper management of natural resources. The commissioners proclaimed May 7-May 14 as Soil Stewardship Week.

April bills in the amount of $86,836.84 were approved for payment.

Commissioners Dr. David K. Rice and James Marshall will attend a full commission meeting of Northwestern Pennsylvania Regional Planning and Development Commission Friday, May 5 in Sharon.

Rep. Reid Bennett, chairman of the sub-committee on tourism and industrial development, will be the luncheon speaker at Shenango Inn.

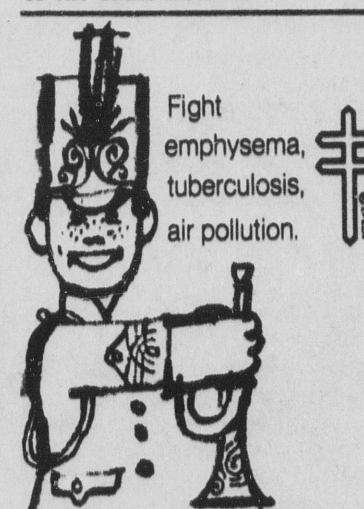

Elwood S. Hochstetter, director of Pennsylvania Appalachia Program, Harrisburg, will discuss that program and James V. Byington, consultant, will review the three-year plan for northwestern Pennsylvania.

The full commission meets four times a year.

Man Arraigned

A Kersey man was arraigned on a warrant of assault and battery and released by district magistrate Elizabeth Friedl on nominal bond of one dollar.

The warrant was filed against Edward L. Wonderling, 41, of Box 11, Kersey, by his wife, Edna B. Wonderling, 40, of the same address.

Kane Workers

Vote To Unionize

By a vote of 51 to 12 workers at McDonough Company, O. Ames Division plant in Kane, Pa., have voted for U.S.W.A. representation. The new bargaining unit, Local 7958 will include 70 production and maintenance workers.

The vote, conducted by the National Labor Relations Board on April 20, 1972 was 51 for the U.S.W.A. and 12 for no union.

Berrigan Seeks Documents On Smuggling Enforcement

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Federal attorneys said Monday they could not provide the Rev. Philip Berrigan records documenting all government enforcement of statutes against smuggling contraband in and out of prisons because of the work it would entail.

Further, the Justice Department memorandums sought by the antiwar priest are privileged information, they also argued.

The post-trial hearing before U.S. District Judge R. Dixon Herman came nearly a month after Father Berrigan and Sister Elizabeth McAlister were convicted of smuggling letters in and out of prison.

The two defendants contend the government hasn't enforced statutes on smuggling contraband in and out of prison,

Four Killed On Thruway

LE ROY, N.Y. (AP) — Four persons were killed Monday in an auto crash on the New York State Thruway near this western New York community.

State troopers said all the victims were from Pennsylvania, but their identities were not immediately learned.

They said the driver, a woman, was the only survivor of the crash. She was taken to Genesee Memorial Hospital in Batavia.

Troopers said the westbound auto was demolished when it plowed into a sign along the Thruway near the Le Roy interchange.

and that to do so now would be discriminatory.

Their attorneys claim the Justice Department memos and the documents of previous prosecutions are necessary to prove their contention.

Monday's hearing was on a government motion to quash Berrigan and McAlister's request for the federal records. Sister Elizabeth was present in the courtroom; Berrigan was not.

Government lawyers said they would have to search every federal records center to find pertinent documents showing previous prosecutions for smuggling contraband.

Defense attorney Kenneth Bass said the government could find the records if it wanted to. Herman ordered that federal records custodians appear Tuesday to testify whether the documents could be found.

Bass also argued, "there are memoranda in the Department of Justice that tell why prosecution was brought. They show what the prosecution's motive was."

"The prosecution was brought for the same reason the jury found a guilty verdict—the defendants were engaged in illegal activity," U.S. Atty. William Lynch shot back.

Lynch added, "The defendants want to know what the prosecutors were thinking—and that is privileged attorney's work product."

Berrigan, 48, was convicted last month of smuggling four letters out of Lewisburg in 1970 to Sister Elizabeth, 32. The maximum penalty is 40 years. Sister Elizabeth, a professor at Marymount College in Arroyo, N.Y., was found guilty on three counts of smuggling letters into Lewisburg, and faces a maximum 30 years sentence.

Berrigan is serving a six-year federal prison sentence for destruction of draft records at Baltimore and Catonsville, Md. Sister Elizabeth is free on $10,000 bond.

The jury in the Harrisburg 7 case failed to convict Berrigan, McAlister and five others charged with plotting to kidnap presidential aide Henry Kissinger, blow up heating tunnels in Washington, D.C. federal buildings and raid east coast draft boards.

Relief In Sight

Tired of unwanted telephone solicitations? Tired of sweet-voiced dolies disturbing your bridge game or afternoon siesta to inquire if you would be interested in investment property in Timbuktu, or a photo of your loved one staring out from a gilded frame with that silly grin that comes from trying to look sober and say "cheese" at the same time?

If so, there has finally come about a means of depriving yourself of these delightful interludes. Just drop a line to Congressman Les Aspin and tell him you support to the fullest extent possible under your privilege as a common citizen his Telephone Privacy Act (H. R. 14097) which he and 28 cosponsors recently introduced.

However, there are some possible changes in this proposed legislation you may wish to suggest. It could be that you are not in favor of exempting such notable telephone users from the provisions of the act as politicians, opinion poll takers, and a general classification covering all forms of non-profit organizations. Use of the mails by such persons and organizations (Congressmen have franking privileges) could be far less bothersome, and their proposal could be disposed of in a less embarrassing manner.

It would hardly be advisable, though, to object to the exemption to be granted collection agencies. Such an objection could be a reflection on your status as an upright citizen.

But wouldn't it be a grand and glorious feeling to know that forevermore we would be free from those embarrassing moments of stammering out excuses, of politely trying to end the conversation and get back to what we were doing before the telephone rang? You just bet it would! May the Telephone Privacy Act quickly become a law of the land. Privacy we can use, and especially in this respect.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — A prominent ad agency broke off its campaign to help Senator Jim Eastland's rival in Mississippi's Democratic primary after the agency was promised it might get a cut of President Nixon's lucrative campaign advertising.

Eastland, of course, is the Senate Judiciary chairman who bailed out Richard Kleindienst, the President's choice for attorney general, during the ITT hearings. Before the first witness was heard, Eastland declared his faith in Kleindienst and, thereafter, steered him helpfully through the stormy hearings.

Eastland was also the lone Democrat who voted with the Republicans, in the end, to shut off the hearings to avoid any more embarrassing testimony.

Yet, despite the appearance of a blatant political deal, the parties to it insist it can all be explained away as fast as you can say ITT.

Here are the facts: Taylor Webb, a moderate Leland, Miss., lawyer, decided early this year to run against the owlish Eastland, whose power in the Senate is based on 30 years seniority.

Webb resisted pressure to keep out of the race and announced his candidacy. He then sought an advertising agency to handle his campaign, but four in a row turned him down.

He was compelled, finally, to go out of the state for help, and he signed up the respected Houston firm of Culberson, Heller and Norton.

"Before I signed with these people, I asked if they knew what they were getting into," Webb told my associate Les Whitten. "Bob Heller and Jim Culberson both said they did."

Webb advanced the agency $7,500. The Houston firm cashed the check and started producing TV spots. On April 15, they were still working loyally for Webb against Eastland when peppy Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., one of their key clients, flew into Houston.

ERRAND BOY

It's an open secret in Washington that Tower is an errand boy for the White House. He notified the Houston and agency that if they wanted to stay in his good graces, they would have to drop Webb.

Earlier, Tower had promised the agency to seek the Texas contract for President Nixon's campaign with its millions in billings. This, too, was in the balance.

As one of the partners, Ed Norton, explained to us: "Tower told us months earlier he would try to get us the presidential business. We felt that before, during and after (the meeting with Tower), he intended to help us."

Tower told us that he had reaffirmed his commitment to the young agency at the meeting. "I said I would try to get some of the Nixon business for them but I'd have done that for them anyway," he advised us.

Within 24 hours of Tower's warning to the agency, another partner, Bob Heller, was on the phone with an outraged Taylor Webb. Recalls Webb: "Heller told me he was going to withdraw from my campaign at the direction of Senator John Tower. Heller said that Tower did not want them 'involved in Mississippi in a campaign against Senator Eastland.'" Heller denied to us that he had mentioned Eastland's name.

What makes this all the more curious is that Tower is a Republican and Eastland a Democrat. Normally, Republicans don't help Democrats to win re-election to the Senate.

The ad agency put out the story that they had dropped the Webb account solely because they were too busy with the Tower campaign. But the agency knew how busy they would be before they signed on with Webb.

We have now discovered that agency partner Norton, after begging off Webb's campaign allegedly because of too much work, flew secretly to Washington on April 27 to seek Nixon's political advertising. In short, Norton went to Washington to see that Nixon's advertising team delivered on Tower's promise.

Norton talked to the "November Group," as the Nixon advertising team is called. He spoke to the group's executive vice president, Phil Joanou, who works under the direction of former Attorney General John Mitchell.

Mitchell also was handled with great gentleness by Senator Eastland during the ITT hearings.

Joanou promised to consider the Houston agency when it comes time to dish out the advertising accounts.

Footnote: Joanou, Norton, Heller, Tower and Eastland all insist they were not party to any deal. Norton specifically denied persistent reports that Fred LaRue, a former White House aide and now special assistant to Mitchell, had joined Tower in putting heat on the Houston agency to drop the Webb account. LaRue, an old friend of Eastland, couldn't be reached. Tower, in a chat with us from Texas, stoutly denied that the White House had asked him to act in Eastland's behalf. Tower said that when Webb threatened to sue the agency, he told them to go along and take Webb's account. Eastland, himself, cautious as an old bear, commented: "Hell, I don't know a thing about it. If John Tower was doing something for me, I think he would have talked to me about it."

JIMMY'S PREDICTIONS

Jimmy the Greek, the famous Las Vegas oddsmaker who prepares his political odds for us, rates Hubert Humphrey and George McGovern even in the crucial Democratic primary in Ohio today (Tuesday).

With George Wallace out of the race, the Greek believes Henry Jackson will pick up many Wallace votes and, therefore, will roll up a respectable total. But the chances are 50-to-1 against Jackson's winning, Jimmy believes. Ed Muskie's prospects, since he has withdrawn from the race, are also 50-to-1.

In the last primary Jimmy predicted for us, he called the results in Florida right on the nose.

The world will little note nor long remember what we say here .

Pennsylvania Story

Auditing The Auditor

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — It is ironic that on the same day Governor Shapp released an audit of the Auditor General's Department there appeared another story about how Pennsylvania's taxpayers are being nicked an extra $1.3 million a year because the Shapp Administration doesn't pay its bills on time.

All of which must make the man on the street wonder which is worse — "slow audits," as Mr. Shapp charges against the Auditor General's Department, or "slow pay?"

Which takes the most money out of the taxpayer's pocket — unnecessarily? The answer is obvious: the so-called "slow audit" — while perhaps undesirable — costs him nothing.

Actually, the independent observer can't be sure that Governor Shapp hasn't made a big thing out of this because he is in favor of "quickie" audits — the kind in which the auditors are in and out of the various agencies and departments (without spending enough time in any of them to find out anything important).

The public, rather than being upset by "slow" audits, seemingly should feel relieved that they have an Auditor General who won't be hurried — who takes his time and who, when he finds anything wrong, lets the public know about it — regardless of whether the party responsible is his own (Democratic) or Republican.

In the three years or so Auditor General Robert P. Casey has been in office, he has become the closest thing to an ombudsman that Pennsylvania has ever seen.

What is really important is not that some of the audits may not be completed as fast as Governor Shapp and his personally-hired and well-remunerated auditors would like, but what the Governor and his administration do about what the Auditor General does find!

Too many times, auditors make a report and that is the end of it.

The 'Muskie' Is Recalled

WASHINGTON — Presidential Motors announced last week that it was recalling the "Muskie," once considered the hottest model on the road.

In a terse statement announcing the recall, Presidential Motors said, "Engineering difficulties and lack of consumer acceptance have forced us to recall the 'Muskie.'"

The story behind the rise and fall of the "Muskie" is one of the great stories of automobile history. It was originally developed by such great presidential designers as Averill Harriman, Clark Clifford, Sol Linowitz, Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania and John Gilligan of Ohio. They wanted a quiet model that would hold the middle of the road, had the confidence of the people and was safe at any speed.

From a design point of view, it had to appeal to the little man, but at the same time it had to look like a Lincoln.

After working at their drawing boards for two years, they came up with the "Muskie," a name they were sure would have consumer appeal.

Before investing money in the model, the manufacturer took surveys all over the country. They discovered that, compared to other models that would be offered in 1972, the "Muskie" was leading 2 to 1. At one point, it was rated more popular than the "Nixon," and Presidential Motors was sure it had a winner on its hands.

As a result of the surveys, millions of dollars were allotted for a high-powered advertising campaign. The "Muskie" was described as a front-runner, unbeatable in the cities and in the countryside. It was designed for comfort and had something for everybody — the poor, the farmers, the blue-collar workers, the businessmen.

It came in all colors and all sizes. It was, according to the ads, the best buy for 1972.

With an overconfidence not seen in automobile circles since Detroit put out the "Romney," the manufacturers took the "Muskie" up to New Hampshire for road testing.

Everything was going along fine when suddenly, in front of a national TV audience, the "Muskie" broke down in Manchester, N. H.

Presidential Motors was appalled. All the time and effort and money invested in the model was wiped out by one small radiator leak.

To make matters worse, the press reported that the "Muskie" had a very short fuse and every once in a while went out of control.

The engineers and designers took another look at it and tried to repair the damage before trial runs in Florida. But the "Muskie" came in a bad fourth in the race, and some people at Presidential Motors decided they had another "Romney" on their hands.

The advertising money was cut back, and the people working on the "Muskie" campaign were taken off salary.

Investors started backing off. The consumer began taking interest in another smaller model called a "McGovern," which had been built in the back room of a garage in South Dakota.

The next disaster took place in Wisconsin when, after a slow start, the "Muskie" ran out of gas.

The final trials came in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania. Presidential Motors decided that if it couldn't sell the "Muskie" there, they couldn't sell it anywhere.

Once the sales figures came in from those two states, Presidential Motors had no choice but to recall the model. The manufacturers have announced that while the "Muskie" will not be sold in Ohio, Michigan, New York or California this year, it will be on display in the showroom at the Miami Convention Center, in case anyone still wants to buy it.

The Ideology Of War

By Tom Wicker

NEW YORK — On March 19, 1968, not long after the great Tet offensive in Vietnam, President Lyndon B. Johnson went before the National Foreign Policy Conference to declare:

"Danger and sacrifice built this land, and today we are the No. 1 nation. And we are going to stay the No. 1 nation."

On April 30, 1972, while the North Vietnamese spring offensive is still going forward, President Richard M. Nixon went to the Texas ranch of John Connally and told an audience of millionaires that in Vietnam, "In the final analysis what is really on the line is the position of the United States as the strongest nation in the world."

At the Connally ranch, Nixon also observed that a communist victory in Vietnam would cause the office of the presidency to "lose respect" in the eyes of the world. This was a repetition from his recent television speech in which he said that "If the United States betrays the millions of people who have relied on us in Vietnam, the President of the United States, whoever he is, will not deserve nor receive the respect which is essential. . ."

These remarks about "respect" may put some in mind of the Godfather, that other hard-nosed commander-in-chief and "man of respect." In the Godfather's world, too, maintaining "respect" was usually a matter of willingness to use force.

That is a comparison that may seem shocking, but interesting light is shed on it in a new book, the Roots of War by Richard J. Barnet. Barnet observes that history repeatedly demonstrates how "individuals get medals, promotions and honors by committing the same acts for the state for which they would be hanged or imprisoned in other circumstances."

And he quotes Cavour: "If we did for ourselves what we did for our country, what rascals we should all be."

But the passage about "respect" in Nixon's television speech continued: "... Respect which is essential if the United States is to continue to play the great role we are destined to play of helping to build a new structure of peace in the world." And that has to be read against his remark in Texas about "the strongest nation in the world," which so nearly duplicates Lyndon Johnson's statement about "The No. 1 nation."

Barnet's book suggests that it is no accident that two presidents so outwardly different as Johnson and Nixon should state such similar conceptions of the nation's place in the world; indeed they only echoed the statements of most of the foreign policy leaders of the post-World War II era. It is Barnet's thesis that the society, economy and government of the United States has determined American foreign policy in that period, and that — contrary to popular belief — that policy has not been a necessary and virtuous response to the challenges of other countries.

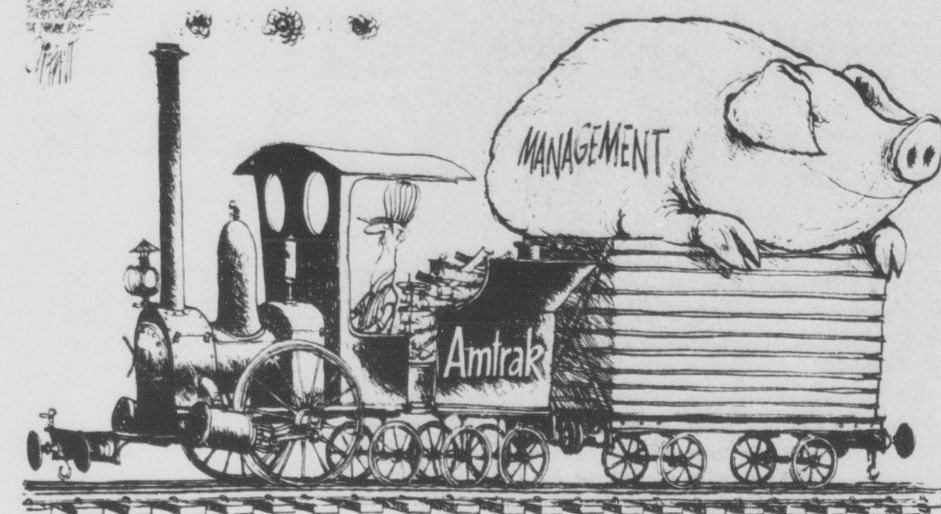

As the first of three primary "roots of war," Barnet sees what he calls a "national security bureaucracy which increasingly comes to play by its own rules without regard to what it does to the country it is supposed to be defending." This "small, durable and exclusive club" fashioned and enforced a national security orthodoxy, based on the forceful assertion of American interests, when necessary.

The club's origins in the highest levels of business and finance meant that the second of the three "roots of war," the capitalist economy, could exert outside influence almost without trying. That was important, Barnet writes, because "As long as the American economic imperative is growth," the need for raw materials, markets and new jobs decrees that "the pressures toward economic expansion and military presence abroad will be irresistible."

The third root of war, in the Barnet thesis, is "the vulnerability of the public to manipulation on national security issues." Confronted with the orthodoxy and commitments of the national security bureaucracy, most Americans have been willing to acquiesce and believe — particularly because bureaucratic decisions customarily have been cloaked in the "national interest" — and put forward through the supposed majesty and authority of the presidency, that almost mystical office toward which every American is coached to show undeviating "respect."

Even so, it has been necessary to have a guiding ideology to explain and maintain support for a policy that has involved the United States, since 1945, in military or paramilitary operations in Greece, Iran, Guatemala, Indonesia, Lebanon, Laos, Cuba, the Congo, British Guiana, the Dominican Republic and Vietnam. That ideology has been and still is the necessity for the nation to be "No. 1" and "the strongest in the world" — not, it is always explained, for its own selfish benefit, but so that it could, as Nixon most recently put it, "play the great role we are destined to play of helping to build a new structure of peace in the world."

Dean Rusk used to call it "Organizing the peace." Anyway you phrase it, it means managing the world.

Mr. Nixon's Speech

By William F. Buckley, Jr.

President Nixon's admirable speech nevertheless leaves us with the difficulties that crawl through the text, haunting the reader.

He began, as usual, by describing the scale on which the United States has withdrawn its soldiers. Ninety five per cent of the fighting men who were there when Mr. Nixon took office are now gone. Instead, the South Vietnamese are carrying the full military load on the ground. And it is a very considerable load. Their losses last week were the highest of the entire war. At 4,000 dead and wounded you would need to visualize 50,000 American casualties to get a comparable figure.

Now the idea of Vietnamization was that we would withdraw pari passu as the South Vietnamese built up their army. One American soldier out, one South Vietnamese soldier in. Or, in the more complicated equation, one fully trained efficient American soldier out, two half-trained South Vietnamese soldiers in.

But suddenly with the great spring offensive of North Vietnam we discover that things are not that way at all. It may be, as the President has assured us, that we will win. But it is unquestionably the case that the enemy is getting away with the kind of thing it would never have ventured during the period the United States army was there. I mean: tank-led, open invasion by a dozen military divisions. They are doing to South Vietnam what we hoped and prayed they would try to do during the long years we were there, fighting an infiltrators' war. Already we see that Vietnamization has not worked militarily.

And then the President said: "Our air strikes have been essential in assisting the South Vietnamese." "Essential." Then he said that General Abrams said that the enemy will fail. Then he said "we can now see the day when no more Americans will be involved (in South Vietnam) at all."

He also told us that the word of the North Vietnamese is utterly unreliable. He told us that in the past few weeks the enemy has violated two of the pledges to President Johnson in 1968 in return for a termination of the bombing: namely, the enemy came down across the DMZ, and the enemy began shelling the civilian population. He also told us that back in October, our intelligence detected the build-up in North Vietnamese military strength "yet we deliberately refrained from responding militarily."

For the rest, Mr. Nixon recapitulated what he takes as axiomatic, namely that there will be wars all over the world if we permit a successful aggression, that the North Vietnamese "cannot be allowed to win"; that "we will not be defeated and we will never surrender our friends to Communist aggression."

So, 1) Vietnamization is already and palpably a partial failure, see above. 2) Our air support having proved essential to the South Vietnamese at this juncture, it would presumably prove essential to the South Vietnamese at any future juncture — at the crisis of, say, 1974, or 1976. 3) There are no known plans to give the South Vietnamese an air force that would permit it to bomb Hanoi and Haiphong, in the absence of which there is no way for us to neutralize Hanoi and Haiphong as major launching bases for fresh attacks in the future. Therefore, 4) we most precisely cannot "now see the day when no more Americans will be involved" while simultaneously pledging that we "will never surrender our friends to Communist aggression." It is one or the other: either perpetual American involvement, through our air force and navy; or the surrender of South Vietnam.

And everybody knows the political situation. Two years from now Congress would simply not permit us to do what we are doing now. The doves are on the march, and Richard Nixon knows it. That being the case we can confidently look forward to the return of all our men from the Indo-chinese area, and just about as confidently look forward to the North Vietnamese conquest of South Vietnam and so much for our friends, and for the fate of our friends.

Unless — Mr. Nixon told a confederate, in 1967, that only someone who has seen the daily reports of the National Security Council and the CIA, as he did for eight years as Vice President, could know what were the pressure points of the Soviet Union, and of Red China, on a day by day basis, and that the Vietnam war could only be won by playing on those pressure points. What are the indications that he has mastered that great console?

The Reader Speaks

Dear Sir:

The article in "Allegheny" paper this morning April 26, was well done and informative. I have a suggestion to make for helping to deal with the foreseen problem of irritated and perhaps angry tourists. Why not have copies of this article printed up to be given out from the Tourist information booth, the Forest rangers and anyone else who can see that this information can be given to the tourists? Perhaps restaurants, grocery stores, gasoline stations, etc. would cooperate. Have them available at the dam site, beach areas, Marina, etc.

As a citizen who is concerned about a good tourist trade being promoted and fostered, this suggestion could create a positive cooperative effort on those tourists who might get angry and be a negative influence.

Sincerely,
(Mrs.) Jean C. Proud
Warren

Pamela Miller, John McCurdy Wed

Pamela Jane Miller became the bride of John William McCurdy in a double ring ceremony held at the Grace United Methodist Church, Warren, April 8.

The Rev. Lyston Knappenberger officiated at the morning ceremony. Richard Pratt supplied traditional organ music.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Miller, Sr., 1307 Sill st., Warren. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCurdy, 285 Pleasant drive, Warren.

As the bride was escorted to the altar by her father, she was wearing a floor length gown of blue chiffon over taffeta. Floral applique accented the empire waistline and double puffed sleeves of the gown. To complete her ensemble, she wore a matching picture hat.

She carried a colonial bouquet with blue-tipped white roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Patricia Hall, Philadelphia, a sister of the bride, wore a floor length gown of blue floral nylon over taffeta. A blue satin bow adorned the empire waistline, and ruffles trimmed the neckline and bodice of the gown. She wore a white picture hat and carried a single long stemmed yellow rose.

Thomas Egger, Warren, was chosen as best man. Ushers were Donald McCurdy, a brother of the bridegroom, and Toby Miller, a brother of the bride.

A reception for the newlyweds was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Papalia, 301 Eddy st. Reception decorations were blue and white streamers and wedding bells.

Carol Brew and Beth Channing served as reception aides.

The bride is a graduate of Warren Area High School and was employed at Levinson Brothers before her marriage. The bridegroom is also a Warren Area High School graduate. He is serving in the United States Navy, stationed in Charleston, South Carolina, where the couple is now living.

Pre-nuptial showers and parties were given in honor of the bride by her aunts, Rose Minnick, Betty Papalia, Joyce Salerno, Joyce and Christina Smith, Dorothy Taylor, and friends, Carol Brew, Beth Channing, and Joyce Lawson. She was also honored at a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Donald McCurdy.

Y-Teen Weekend Speaker

Dolores Brinkley, pictured above in the center, is shown discussing plans for her part in the YWCA Teen Weekend held here Friday and Saturday. Two of the Warren planners, Jo Ann Borg and Tina Doran are shown going over last minute planning for the event. The theme of the program was "Elimination of Racism," and girls from Meadville, Titusville, Oil City, and Warren participated. The out-of-town girls stayed at the YWCA overnight Friday, sleeping on the floor. Miss Brinkley recently returned to

YWCA work after retiring from her job with the New York City Housing Authority. Before that, she worked as Recreation Director in the USO of Fayetteville, N. C., with Teens in YWCAs of Hartford and New York City, and in the United Neighborhood Homes and Youth Corps. She is a graduate of North Carolina College with a major in Sociology, and Hunter College, School of Social Work. Her volunteer experience includes work in the church and the New York City YWCA. ## Turn Of The Century Balls Were Held In Private Homes

Once upon a time, in Warren, at "The Turn of the Century" young ladies and gentlemen attended dancing lessons at the old Woodard Theater (K. of C. Hall) or the Mansion House preparatory to attending balls and cotillions at the proper age.

The lessons started with girls on one side and boys on the other doing the box step, and finally graduating to the two-step and the waltz.

On the gala night, the young lady in white gloves and party dress entered with her escort and each was given a program which was marked off in at least twelve dances. A little pencil was attached to the program with a cord. It was customary for the escort to have at least the first and last dance. For the young lady, it would have been a bore to have every dance with her escort and she hoped her card would soon be full after it had been given her.

The first dance was always a grand march and the remaining dances were divided between waltzes and two-steps. The hostess often asked a special couple to lead the dance, which meant they danced around the room once when the music started, and then the rest of the guests joined them. Sometimes in the middle of the program, the boys were lined up on one side and the girls on the other. When the music started, the girls danced to the boy of their choice. Of course, this could be reversed to the boy's choice for another dance. About every third dance, favors would be placed on a table at the side of the room, sometimes for the boys - sometimes for the girls for that particular dance on the program.

The last dance on the program was something done in partial darkness to the music of "Good Night Ladies."

Once upon a time, in Warren, there were a number of homes built with ballrooms on the top floor where "Turn of the Century" balls and parties were given.

It might be of interest to those going to The Turn of the Century Ball, Saturday, May 6 at the Woman's Club, that there were also ballrooms in the Isaac Horton house (Dr. J.T. Valone); Jamieson house (now owned by Dr. Lawrence Krespan); Joseph Horton house (now Mrs. Horace Cray's garden at Fifth and Market); Archie Scofield house (307 Market Street); and the Talbot house (now site of Warren Apartments).

Some other well known homes with ballrooms are the Hall house (now owned by William Clinger, Jr.); the Guy Grandin house (now the Warren Medical Center); Governor Stone house (John Stone residence); Siggins house (Quinn Smith residence) and the Theodore Messner house (now owned by Dr. William Cashman).

The essence of Warren's Victorian past and shadowy image of lovely ladies and gentlemen dancing will be captured again by the 12th Annual Charity Ball from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Perhaps residents will glimpse a horse-drawn two-seated carriage with fringed top conveying couples to the ball, where they will be greeted by Victorian houseboys, Gregg Hovanic and Mark Hilse.

Sugar Grove Mothers Hear Pollution Program

Fred Skotten showed a film "The River Must Live", and answered questions on local pollution problems, for the Sugar Grove Pre-school Mothers Group.

An election of officers was held. The new officers are, president, Mary Lou Van Dorn; vice-president, Joanne Darling; secretary, Lynn Jordan; and treasurer, Marjean Hagberg.

Mrs. Donald Sherrard, chairman of the banquet committee announced the menu for the banquet at the Embers Restaurant in Jamestown May 25.

Mrs. Walter Machemer proposed an amendment to the bylaws, scheduling the future elections of officers for the evening of the spring banquet. The proposal was accepted.

A picnic was planned for members' pre-school and kindergarten children, May 22 at 11 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Donald Sherrard. Members are asked to bring their own hot dogs and buns. The beverage, chips and relishes will be provided.

The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Alton Chase and Mrs. Peter Glotz Jr.

Do you know that your feet are capable of doing things you never dreamed possible? We have heard of amputees who were able to shave, feed themselves, even play the piano with their feet. That's pretty amazing... for feet. But we often take them for granted... until they give us trouble. Then they're very important. Do you realize how many hundreds, perhaps thousands, of steps you take every day? And how much pressure your feet are required to bear, with the weight of your entire body.

We don't take your feet for granted. We go to great pains to see that you go without pain, in your feet. Trust us to fit your family's shoes with the utmost of skill and interest. We think your feet are very important.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You were wrong when you attributed the world's longest beard to a man named Phillip Henson. You said he was 6'2", had a ten-year growth, and his beard, which swept the carpet, measured six feet eight inches in length.

According to the back files of the Beckley W. Va. Raleigh-Register (we run your column) an item and picture dated June 8, 1923, reported that a man named Zach T. Wilcox of Carson City, Nevada had a beard 12 feet 3 inches long. It had been growing since 1881 and was 12 feet 3 inches long when the article appeared in print. — The Micro-Film Wizard of Beckley

DEAR ANN LANDERS: The man with the longest beard was not Phillip Henson, it was A. B. Norton of Dallas, Texas. Mr. Norton, a college student in 1844, vowed he would not shave until Henry Clay was elected President of the United States. When he died at the age of 80, Mr. Norton's beard was so long he had to roll it up and keep it tucked in his vest. The undertaker who buried him was my great-grandfather. He wrote in the family Bible, "We buried a man today whose beard measured 12 feet 9 inches." So he holds the record, Ann. — Fifth Generation Texas

DEAR ANN: I hope you don't mind being corrected, but the longest beard, according to the Guinness Book of World's Records, belonged to Jules Dumont, born in France in 1856. His beard measured 11 feet 1 1/2 inches long when he died in 1911. — Pontiac, Illinois Reader

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your beardologist is in error. Phillip Henson's beard was not the world's longest. As the General Manager for the Believe It Or Not Museum, we have specialized in the unusual for 50 years. The world's record is held by a man named Valentine Tapley. He vowed that if Abraham Lincoln were elected President he would never shave again. Fifty years later, when Mr. Tapley died, his beard measured 12 1/2 feet. — Believe It Or Not — J. H. Long, Ripley Museum, Chicago

DEAR MR. LONG: I'd LIKE to believe it, but read the next letter:

DEAR ANN: Phillip Henson's beard was nothing compared to my great-grandfather's. Hans Langseth was born and raised in Norway and lived most of his life in Barney, North Dakota. When he died in 1927 his beard was 17 1/2 feet long. The beard is now on display in the Smithsonian Institution. Many articles and pictures were published about my great-grandfather's fantastic beard. Both Life magazine and the Minneapolis Tribune did some wonderful pieces. The Minot Daily News clipping is the funniest so I am sending it along with this letter. Anyone who wants proof can go to Washington and see for himself. — Lynn Langseth — Great Grandchild Of The Winner

DEAR ANN: You are a chauvinist pig. You reported that the longest beard in the world belonged to a man named Henson. Why didn't you mention the woman who holds the record? Her name was Janice Devere of Kentucky. When she died in 1884 her beard was 14 inches long. — Louisville Fan

DEAR FAN: Sorry about the oversight. Since you seem to be up on such matters I wonder if you can tell me if Janice Devere slept with her beard over the blankets or under the blankets?

Highway Cleanup

Irvine boy scouts and girl scouts — about 20 children altogether — filled the Brokenstraw township truck with debris they picked up along roadsides in their community on Saturday morning, as their contribution to the nationwide Scouting observance of Keep America Beautiful Day. In addition, they filled several large bags with discarded glass bottles for delivery to the recycling collection point at the Warren YMCA. Scout master Larry Dunham and committeeman David Cowles directed the operation. Donald Lake drove the truck, donated for use by the township supervisors.

Girls Clean Cemetery

Pittsfield Girl Scouts spent Saturday — Keep America Beautiful Day — cleaning up a virtually abandoned cemetery off Route 6, known in county records as the Bill Cemetery. Markers dating as far back as 1811 were cleaned off and set back in place, and brush, dead trees, and other debris were hacked down and hauled aside, prior to the planting of seeds around the graves. All the graves were nineteenth century, and bore, besides the Bill name, those of the Andrews, Durlin, Holcomb, Jordan and Smith families. One marker commemorated Chauncy Bill, a veteran of the War of 1812. The girls expect to continue their project throughout the summer.

Medical Journal Seeking 'Test-Tube Baby' Halt

CHICAGO (AP) — The Journal of the American Medical Association says a moratorium should be declared on experiments aimed at development of "test-tube babies."

An editorial in the May 1 issue of the journal says "the time seems clearly at hand" to declare a moratorium on experiments that would attempt to implant into a woman's uterus a human egg which had been fertilized by human sperm in a test tube.

The editorial recommends that "representatives of various disciplines should be assembled to discuss once again the thorny issues raised by genetic engineering."

Physicians, scientists, philosophers and theologians are concerned with moral, ethical, religious and scientific implications of genetic engineering, says the AMA publication.

They are especially concerned, says the Journal, with the growth of fertilized human eggs in test tubes, which has already been achieved, and with cloning, a method of producing off-spring with predetermined traits.

No test-tube fetuses have been fully developed, and experiments with cloning so far have only been used to reproduce frogs.

Experiments in development of test-tube babies are designed to permit women who cannot themselves conceive children to have implantations of eggs taken surgically from their bodies and fertilized in test tubes.

Such an egg would be brought to term in their bodies and delivered.

It is possible, too, that an egg might be taken from the body of one woman, fertilized, then implanted in the body of another woman from whom it is not possible to obtain a usable egg.

These experiments have reached the point where this method of reproduction seems imminent, the editorial states.

Those who favor development of test-tube babies defend it on grounds it would permit fulfillment of the desire of an infertile woman to bear her own child.

Opponents say, among other things, that infertility is not a disease and that implantation of a fertilized egg would be treatment of a "desire." They also maintain that the method involves unethical experimentation on future possible human beings.

Cloning in humans still seems to be remote, the editorial says. Cloning involves the substitution of the nucleus of an unfertilized egg of a being of the same species.

Discounting environmental influences, cloning could result in development of individuals identical to the selected donor individuals.

Lottery Publicity Bill Supported

ERIE — Local lottery officials have expressed their support of a bill U.S. Senator Richard S. Schweiker of Pennsylvania intends to introduce to the Senate this week which would exempt state-operated lotteries from restrictive federal postal broadcasting and gambling laws.

Many of the problems facing the Pennsylvania lottery, and those which frustrate an information-hungry public, could be solved along with a few other obstacles should the Schweiker bill, entitled the "State Lottery Exemption Act," pass into law.

In short, the Pennsylvania senator's eightpoint bill will ask the following: to exempt all state lotteries from postal restrictions, allowing newspaper to publish lottery information without fear of violating postal regulations. (It would also permit mailing of state lottery tickets, money for purchase of tickets and information about the lottery itself).

—To allow radio and television broadcasting of state lottery information; to allow advertisements of state lotteries in newspapers sent through the mail and on radio and television stations; to exempt state lotteries from the 10 per cent excise tax on all wages;

to allow the transportation of state lottery information and devices in interstate commerce, and to exempt state lotteries from the special federal tax on coin-operated machines, allowing states to utilize vending machines for ticket sales.

Russell-Lander Area News Notes

By HELEN LINDELL

The Wednesday Circle of Russell Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. Leonard Garvin. The business meeting followed a tureen dinner. Mrs. Richard Enos, president, presided.

The mother-daughter banquet date was tentatively set for May 15 with the Thursday Circle in charge of the program.

Mrs. John Squires gave devotions on "The Now Man" and for the program played a recording by Roland Brown.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Flora Martin with Helen Lindell as co-hostess.

Mrs. John Kane and daughter, Linda, have returned from a week's visit with her brother, James Dove in Orangeville, Fla.

Students Plant Tree Seedlings

"Revered and fostered by Indian tribe
And refuge for the early freedom seekers—
O can you not now, modern biped,
Preserve this beauty of earth—this bounty of Heaven—this Pennsylvania?"

In unison, fifty fourth grade students of Youngsville elementary school recited this plea from Eleanor Loughery's poem, "Inheritance," as they prepared to plant seedling evergreen trees at Island Park on Friday morning, as an Arbor Day centennial memorial in honor of the late Gurney R. Ball, a Youngsville conservation enthusiast.

Two of Mr. Ball's daughters, Mrs. Mervin S. (Leila) Craft, and Mrs. Robert M. (Marguerite) Spencer, were present for the occasion. His widow, Mrs. Ethel Ball, was unable to attend.

Four students, Yvonne Carlett, Sharon Randinelli, Shawn Hackett and Roy Eastman, made brief speeches pointing up the significance of the national reforestation movement and their pride in participating in it.

District chief forester Charles Thompson directed the planting of the seedlings, along a slope near the Ford street edge of the park. One well-grown tree was centered on the plot, which has now been protected by a wire fence. As the trees develop, they are to be transplanted to line the road in the park.

The ceremonial planting was the culmination of studies about the nation's forests, and those of Pennsylvania in particular, conducted by fourth grade teachers Mrs. Margaret Wheeler and Mr. L. Eckdahl. Afterwards, the children had packed lunches, picnic style, in the park pavilion.

Secretary Honored

Cathy Galbraith, who was Valedictorian of Youngsville high school in 1970, received the National Secretary Award—a new one presented by Bryant Stratton business college, Buffalo, in recognition of National Secretary Week—in a ceremony at Youngsville High School on Friday.

Last week was National Secretary Week. Miss Galbraith is private secretary to Thomas Hamilton of the Warren office of the Pennsylvania Gas Company. She was one of three students who graduated from Bryant Stratton last June with Highest Distinction, and one of only fifty from some 400 high schools in New York state and Pennsylvania, to receive the National Secretary Award "for excellence in business education and outstanding potential for a secretarial career."

Miss Galbraith is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin D. Galbraith of Irvine. She received her award from James Fregelette, admissions counselor for Bryant Stratton, before a class of business students at the Youngsville school.

Explorer Post 17 Will Reorganize

Explorer Post 17, Sugar Grove, will hold a reorganization meeting Thursday, May 4. The U.S. Forest Service will present a film. The session will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the American Legion. Possible summer activities of the past will include canoe trips, camping and other programs. John VanDorn will be advisor.

Tree Planting

Fourth grade students of Youngsville elementary school, with district chief forester Charles Thompson, honor guests Mrs. Robert Spencer and Mrs. Mervin Craft, and their teachers, Mr. Laverne Eckdahl and Mrs. Margaret Wheeler, pose with one of the trees they planted on Friday as a memorial to the late Gurney R. Ball.

School Play

Sixth grade students of Youngsville elementary school are all set for their presentation of the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera "The Mikado," this Thursday and Friday evenings in the school hall. A good deal of ingenuity has gone into the costuming, but many of those pictured are authentic oriental garments. Principals in the foreground, are, from left to right: Linda Schnell (Pitt) Sing, Scott Munson (Pooh Bah) Callie Williams (Katisha), Robbie Rose (Ko Ko, Lord High Executioner), John Forstrom (the Mikado), Jeff McKinney (Nanki Poo) and Karen Graham (Yum Yum). The presentation will be staged at 7:30 each evening. The fifty cents donations will benefit the sixth grade trip fund.

Irvine elementary school will also present The Mikado, with their own students, on May 8 and 9.

By Florida Minister

Trial Marriages Proposed

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A Unitarian minister who calls traditional marriage an haic is offering a one-year "spiritually sanctioned" trial marriage to couples who vow to love, honor and practice contraception.

The Rev. Adrian Melott, 25, said he believes that after a spiritually sanctioned year of living together the partners can better decide their future relationship, if any.

The minister said in an interview he considers the ceremony he performs as legally binding as the "oath of marriage." But he adds that there has been no test of the legality of the rite in the eyes of the law. A marriage license is not required. The rite has proved unpopular with many religions as well as segments of his own Unitarian faith, says the Rev. Mr. Melott.

"Today so many marriages are out of youthful infatuation that last only a few months," he said. "Then you have a woman, 20 years old, alone with a child."

The stocky red-bearded minister performs the ceremony at an altar, or in a flower garden, depending upon the couple's choice. He encourages the contracting couple to write something of their own for the ten-minute ceremony, and adds to it lines from The Prophet by Kahlil Gibran.

Relative Seen On TV Program

Mr. and Mrs. Reid Pierce, 16 Highland avenue, Youngsville, made special haste back from their recent visit to see Mr. Pierce's brother Hugh (a native of Youngsville) in Mount Pleasant, Texas. They didn't want to miss the television screening of NET Playhouse of a movie, "George Washington—Portrait of a Hero as a Young Man."

Their 17-year-old high school junior grandson, Larnie Fox, had a part in the film as a soldier in Washington's army, during the period when the general was himself only 22, and tangling with the French at Fort Mifflin and in the woods at Jumonville (named for the French commander killed there.) Much of the film was shot in the Jumonville area, which is now a Methodist camp.

Larnie was the only high school student selected for a part. His grandparents were able to recognize him several times during the movie—a 1½ hour show condensed from more than 30 hours of shooting. He is the son of the Pierces' daughter, Nova June, and her husband Lawrence, who is a professor at Clarion state college. The family lives at Shippery Rock. Three younger Fox children, two boys and a girl in elementary school, had "bit" parts in the movie, but their scenes were among those cut out.

Featured actors included Robert Montgomery and Rene Aubert Jonois.

The Pierces are now waiting for the announcement of a promised re-run date for the movie.

Armed Service

Airman First Class Arthur C. McMillan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. McMillan of 101 E. Wayne St., Warren, Pa., is a member of the Okinawa-based 824th Supply Squadron which has earned the U.S. Air Force Outstanding Unit Award for the second consecutive year.

The 824th — located at Kadena Air Base — was cited for outstanding material support that enhanced the effectiveness of tactical air operations of tenant units based at Kadena and flying in the Pacific area.

Airman McMillan, a supply specialist, will wear a distinctive service ribbon to mark his affiliation with the squadron.

He is a 1969 graduate of Warren Area High School.

Burglars Hit Club Near Corry

Persons unknown broke into the Corry Rod and Gun Club at RD 1, Columbus Friday night and got away with $180 worth of 12 gauge shotgun shells.

State police at the Corry substation said the burglar or burglars took the glass out of the front door of the building and then unlocked the door to gain entrance.

Investigations are continuing.

Beaty Chorus To Sing May 16

The 160 voice eighth grade chorus is in the process of memorizing nine songs which they will sing at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, May 16, in conjunction with the National Honor Society's ice cream social.

Final selection of next year's ninth grade mixed chorus has been made, but the students will have to wait until the last week of school this year to find out who made it.

NBC Films will syndicate episodes of the long-running "Bonanza" series — one of the most popular and successful programs in the history of television — under the title "Ponderosa." This program will be seen on WGR, WJAC and WICU at 7:30 p.m. "Ponderosa" will lead off with the colorcast of "Different Pines, Same Wind," which was originally presented on September 15, 1968.

Joe Cartwright (Michael Landon) fails to convince Carrie (Irene Tedrow), an ailing recluse, that she must file a legal claim to prevent timber tycoon Millburn from logging her land. Dr. Belden, who works for Millburn, deserts his employer to treat Carrie. Millburn and his gunmen follow the doctor to Carrie's cabin.

The series has had unprecedented success both in this country, where it is consistently among the top-rated programs each season, and overseas, where it is viewed by a weekly audience of some 400 million people in 80 countries. Just a look at these figures, makes one realize what a top-notch program "Bonanza" is; and it sounds like all Western fans will have one good hour of TV every Tuesday night.

At 8:30 p.m., NBC will present another special entitled "The Dark Side." New York City locales lend realism to this psychological mystery steeped in conspiracy. The plot centers on a private eye who's trying to pass off a skid row bum as a young millionaire's long lost father. This program starring David Wayne, Robert Webber and Geraldine Brooks will be seen on WGR, WJAC and WICU.

Moses Gunn whose credits include "Shaft" and "The Great White Hope," plays a has-been heavyweight boxer sought by Five-O and a contract killer, in what I think was one of the most poignant and touching dramas seen this year on "Hawaii Five-O." For some reason, Willy Stone smashes the hand of the syndicate's most promising fighter, and instead of going to the police, tries to hide from the syndicate, which is impossible. This program is seen weekly at 8:30 p.m. on KDKA, WBEN, WFBG and WSEE.

"The ABC Movie of the Week" will present a chilling drama entitled "The Failing of Raymond" at 8:30 p.m. on WKBW. Jane Wyman and Dean Stockwell star in this movie about a young boy in school who's mentally ill, and when his teacher gives him a failing grade, he decides to make her pay — by killing her.

All the major networks (NBC, CBS, ABC) will provide coverage of the Indiana and Ohio primaries at 10:30 p.m. Ohio is a major industrial state and is of major importance to all the candidates. Since Sen. Edmund Muskie has withdrawn from any further primary contests, the main competition will be between Hubert Humphrey and George Wallace. Wallace is expected to fare well in Indiana, which is a rural state and also has blue collar workers in the steel mills in the northern part of the state. John Chancellor and David Brinkley will report for NBC and analyze the voting and its significance.

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY, MAY 2, 1972
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20) — Don't tread into complications; steer a clear course. Speak softly, but with decisiveness, and DO avoid restlessness and impetuosity.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21) — If you get the right start and maintain an even pace, you can pile up satisfying gains. Don't accept new offers without investigating, however.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — Poise and perseverance are top requirements now. Choose the most appropriate goal, and plan for its achievement carefully.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — Mixed influences. Don't be caught in a tide of vacillation: be resolute, firm. Move on to well-earned gains. Maintain contact with helpful persons.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23) — Pay what you can of what you owe — in time, talents and obligations. Keep debts to a minimum, but don't fear to try out reasonable ventures.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) — Focus ambitions on an attainable plateau. Don't strive for the unreasonable. Negotiations scheduled? Engage in them quietly, purposefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Erase slate for a clean, fresh beginning, even though old matters carry over. In this manner, you can brighten your outlook, will be more responsive to unexpected changes.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22) — Enthusiasm must be properly channeled to be effective. Do not go to extremes on this generally stimulating day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21) — No matter what activity you had planned for this day, you may have to mark time until others are ready, but don't chafe or fret; use the time for re-evaluating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Don't scatter your energies as you keep the ball rolling. Things are not as difficult as they may seem. Confer with others on matters of mutual concern.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — If it will help to clear up a situation in sensible fashion, don't turn down any feasible suggestion. But discriminate between the astute and the rash.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — A shifting of certain situations indicated; perhaps conditions altering. You should be in on the movements and plans.

Warren Man Heads TB Assn.

A Warren man was elected first vice president of the Northwestern Pennsylvania TB and Health Society during the organization's annual meeting last Friday in Erie.

Howard F. Dobson of 200 Monroe st. will serve a one-year term in the new office, concluding March 31, 1973. He is joined by Catherine B. Bauer of St. Marys the new president, and Second-vice president Edward A. Lynch of Titusville.

Dobson will also serve on the organization's board of directors along with Robert M. Kinney, 16 Fourth ave., administrator of Warren General Hospital.

The society, formerly composed of nine counties in Northwestern Pennsylvania, voted to add four new counties to its membership Friday afternoon. New members are Clarion, Forest, Venango and Mercer Counties. The new alignment generally corresponds with the territory covered by Region 6 of the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

TO STORE BANANAS

Keep bananas at room temperature until fully ripe to assure best flavor and consistency. Ripe bananas will keep several days in the crisper of the refrigerator. The skin may turn dark but the fruit will retain its good flavor and texture. Mash bananas with a little lemon juice and freeze for use later in baking. Whole frozen bananas make great snacks. Simply peel banana; dip in lemon juice; insert wooden skewer in end of banana and freeze. Coat with melted chocolate, if desired. Keep in freezer, wrapped in foil or plastic. Serve frozen.

Cancer of the Blood

LEUKEMIA is often called "cancer of the blood." However, cancer of the blood forming organs, principally bone marrow, is more technically correct.

The name derives from the Greek leukos (white) plus emia (referring to the state of the blood). Hence, "white blood" or the excessive production of white blood cells which identifies leukemia.

Cancer kills more children under the age of 15 than any other disease and acute leukemia kills more of them than any other cancer. Chronic leukemia occurs most often in adults.

A number of chemical and hormone drugs, developed since World War II, slow down leukemia; longer in chronic cases than acute. Some patients now live for months or years, free of pain and disability, carrying on their normal activities.

Opening lead: Ace of ♥
Altho East and West's five heart contract could have been defeated by one trick, defensive prospects did not appear favorable to South after his partner jumped to four spades. South persisted to five spades and with the assistance of some well calculated sleight of hand, managed to make his bid stand up for a profit on the deal.
West opened the ace of hearts which was ruffed in dummy with the deuce of spades. Prospects appeared reasonably favorable to declarer, for if either the king of clubs or the queen of diamonds were favorably located, he could expect to hold his losses to two tricks in the minor suits. The only threat to his contract would arise if the club finesse lost to East and when the latter shifted to a diamond—West turned up with both the ace and queen.

Inasmuch as he had no objection to losing a club trick to West, since the latter cannot launch a profitable attack against South's diamond holding, the ace of clubs was cashed at trick two. East played the five, South the deuce and West the three. A small club was continued and it appeared to East that declarer was about to embark on a crossruff in hearts and clubs. He therefore followed with the four, however—to his surprise, South did not trump but produced the jack instead, which won the trick.

Declarer ruffed his two remaining hearts in dummy and eventually led a diamond toward the king-jack. West turned up with both missing honors, but those were the only two tricks won by the defense and South chalked up his doubled contract. Observe that had West turned up with the king of clubs, North's queen becomes established for an eventual diamond discard and declarer's contract is still safe.

East was admittedly placed in an uncomfortable situation at trick three, but there are defensive signals available to help partner count the distribution of a suit led by the declarer. With an odd number of cards, a player follows with his lowest card. With an even number, it is proper to echo in the suit.

Observe that when the ace of clubs was led, East played the five. He followed to the next club with the four to give his partner a count. Had he played equal regard to West's play in clubs, South's subterfuge could have been exposed. In other words, if the deuce of clubs is a singleton, then West began with the J-10-7-3—and when the ace is cashed, the proper play from this holding is the seven. This is the beginning of an echo to show an even number in the suit.

When West followed suit to the ace of clubs by playing the three, he was showing an odd number, which in the present case could only be three. It is proper therefore to put up the king of clubs inasmuch as declarer must have another club, which may be the jack. When the king of clubs wins the trick, the diamond shift becomes marked and South's cleverness goes for naught as the defense cashes out three tricks.

The Jamestown Department of Social Services recently reported that an average of 15 unwed mothers report to their clinic each week. Officials said 50 per cent of the girls are experiencing their first pregnancy, and about a third of them are under 21. They added that many of the women have refused to use birth control devices recommended by private doctors.

Proxmire Suggests U. S. Learn How To Live With Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire says eight months of anti-inflation controls show the nation might do better by scrapping controls and "learning to live with inflation as the lesser of two evils."

C. Jackson Grayson, chairman of the Price Commission, challenges the Wisconsin Democrat's conclusions.

Two weeks of hearings before the congressional Joint Economic Committee have shown that broad, understaffed, peacetime controls are unfair and don't work, Proxmire said in an interview.

Proxmire, who chairs the joint committee, said the hearings convinced him inflation is not being controlled, that nothing much is being done to reduce unemployment, that the productivity of American industry is worsening and that there has been a failure of economic justice.

Much of the damage now being caused by inflation could be overcome by using such devices as cost-of-living escalators in the Social Security system, Proxmire said and added: "If we can't find less damaging ways of controlling inflation than either creating unemployment or imposing complex and unfair controls, we should give serious consideration to learning to live with inflation..."

Proxmire said Grayson is now hedging on promises to roll back prices of companies with inflated profits and give refunds to consumers. Grayson denied this.

Proxmire said the commission is turning too late to tougher policies after letting hundreds of millions of dollars of undesired price increases slip into the economy.

"The wage-price regulations are so prolific, so complicated and so secretive that they have become totally ineffective," Proxmire said.

He said there is overwhelming evidence that the public has no confidence that controls are working.

Proxmire cited the adverse stockmarket reaction early last week after Grayson announced his new policy of price reductions amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars.

He also said he can understand that some administration advisers might be justifiably but inaccurately concerned that if they scrapped controls for all but the largest corporations and labor unions, "they might appear to be soft on inflation..."

In a separate interview, Grayson denied that he is hedging or has reversed his new price-reduction policy because of stock market reaction and administration pressure.

Proxmire said the control program as a whole has had the effect of locking inequities into the system.

He cited what he said is a too-low definition of poverty wages—$1.90 an hour, failure to clamp effective controls on the salaries of top executives and rent rules that "reward past rent gouging and permit its continuation."

Proxmire said he was also concerned over charges made by Ralph Nader that the membership of both the Pay Board and Price Commission is heavily overloaded with persons with close, inescapable ties to big business—ties Nader said amount to "implicit conflict of interest."

As it is now written, the Economic Stabilization Act exempts all members except the two chairman from the federal conflict-of-interest laws.

How To Keep Well

The Athletic Woman

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

More girls and young women today participate in competitive sports. Many of them write to ask me whether it will spoil their chances of having children in the future.

To date there are no indications that a female athlete develops more pelvic disturbances and has more difficulty in childbirth than does the sedentary gal. In fact, the opposite is more likely to occur. Studies have shown that women who did calisthenics or regular exercises since childhood did not complain of backache following childbirth.

The obstetrical records of many outstanding women athletes of the past have been reported in medical journals. A number of years ago a study was made on 107 German women at Heidelberg Gynecological clinic. The investigators concluded that the total duration of delivery was shorter in women athletes than in a control group. Their fertility ratio was normal.

In a similar study of 94 Finnish women athletes, no major disturbances were reported during pregnancy. The duration of labor was shorter and the contractions of the uterus were normal in character. There were fewer cesarean sections and less need for the use of forceps than in a comparable group of women who had not engaged in competitive sports. These findings refute the idea that in women athletes the pelvic muscles enlarge and crowd the birth canal.

Exercise has no adverse effect upon menstruation and physicians recommend it for women with dysmenorrhea (painful period). Menstruation does not impair athletic efficiency, as was demonstrated during the Olympic games at Helsinki in 1952. A number of outstanding athletes competed and none reported the slightest impairment. Some believed their performances were better than normal.

The esthetic aspects of being muscular can be improved if the female athlete behaves in a lady-like fashion. Fighting, swearing, and lack of sportsmanship are not admirable. Men are amused by these antics, but find such women unattractive.

FLAT FEET

R. R. writes: My daughter suffers from fallen metatarsals. Is there any way she can strengthen the feet by exercise or other measures? Arch supports do not help at all.

REPLY

Fallen metatarsals is a fancy term for flat feet. Arch supports should help temporarily provided they are inserted in the right place. The easiest exercises are to pick up marbles with the toes or raise and lower the body by standing on the toes. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on fallen arches.

Yes. Any infection of the upper respiratory system involving the nose may be associated with trouble along this line. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on sinus disturbances.

Army Unveils New Enlistees' Program Options

U. S. Army S-Sgt. Don Baumann, local recruiter, announced today that in conjunction with efforts to form an all volunteer Army three new programs for enlistment have been added.

Men may now enlist for formal training in over 150 different skills and a stateside station of choice, with a minimum tour of 16 months. If the individual does not want formal schooling he may choose from over 30 jobs in which he will receive on-the-job training and choice of stateside assignments.

Persons enlisting for either Program may also be delayed on assignment on active duty for up to 180 days. These programs are available to men who are qualified to enlist for a period of three years and also to former servicemen of all branches who are qualified to be reenlisted in the pay grade of E-3 and above.

For women, the Army has announced that they may also be delayed now for 180 days and enlist for a minimum for a period of two years.

For more information on these and other programs, contact S-Sgt. Don Baumann at the Warren Post Office, Room 206, or call 723-1631.

Blue To Sign; Wait 'Till Next Year Says Attorney

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Vida Blue has a $63,000 package—we're not happy but we're satisfied," Blue's attorney, Robert J. Gerst, said Monday. "We'll be back next year," he Los Angeles attorney said, crediting Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn with bringing "reason, logic and fairness" into the negotiations with Oakland Athletics' owner Charles Finley. The 22-year-old Blue was the American League's Most Valuable Player in 1971 when he had a 24-8 record in his first full major league season. He was paid $14,500 in 1971 and sought $115,000 when negotiations opened with Finley for 1972. The demand was lowered to $92,000 but Finley was sticking to $50,000, until last Friday, when a $63,000 package was offered. "Without the commissioner, we never would have had a deal," Gerst said. "We met in separate rooms with the commissioner's attorney, Sandy Hadden."

"It became a power struggle between Charles Finley and the commissioner's office," he said the commissioner's office "supported us against Finley's statement that Vida renege on the contract and forced Finley to keep it open." Gerst said he was upset, how ever, that Kuhn's office released the story before the ABC television program Monday night in which Howard Cosell had an interview with Blue. "It's just unfair to Howard Cosell," Gerst said. "He offered Vida a platform to explain his feelings."

Gerst said Finley's references to Blue as a confused young man from a small town were demeaning.

"Dignity is non-negotiable," Gerst said. "Blue got the chance to get the message across on national television."

Kuhn's intervention in the case came after Gerst wrote asking that other American League owners be allowed to negotiate with Blue, the attorney said.

Astros Tally Twice In Ninth, 9-8

Houston Rallies To Nip Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Bob Watson singled home one run and Tommy Helms delivered another with a sacrifice fly as the Houston Astros rallied for two runs in the ninth inning to beat the slumping Pittsburgh Pirates 9-8 Monday night. Jim Wynn, who singled with one out in the ninth and moved to second on Lee May's base hit, came home with the first run when Watson hit a soft single to right-center.

After the runners moved up on a wild pitch by Dave Giusti, Doug Rader was walked intentionally and Tommy Helms knocked in the decisive run with a sacrifice fly.

The Pirates cut the Astros' margin to one run in their half of the ninth on a double by Roberto Clemente and a single by Al Oliver.

Clemente, who was batting .255 and had no runs batted in after 13 games, hit his first homer of the season, capping a four-run Pittsburgh sixth inning to tie the game at 7-7.

The Pirates, who have lost six straight, got a run in the first on an infield grounder by Clemente after Cash singled and went to third on a double by Rennie Stennett.

They made it 3-0 in the fourth on five consecutive singles by Manny Sanguillen, Al Oliver, Gene Clines, Richie Hebner and Gene Alley.

But the Astros took a 4-3 lead in the fifth on a grand slam home run by Jim Wynn and made it 7-3 on a three-run homer by John Edwards in the sixth before the Pirates made their comeback.

Last year, in their drive for the World Series, the Pirates' longest losing streak was four games. After Sunday's loss to Atlanta, Manager Bill Virdon gave his team a "bust your rear" pep talk, but it didn't cure the Pirates' ills.

While Pittsburgh has been in a slump, the Astros continue to draw praise from Houston fans. Manager Harry Walker's club has now won 11 of its last 15 games.

Walker said his team was progressing well during spring training and was not affected greatly by the players' strike. Pirate watchers, unhappy with the world champions' early season showing, suggest that maybe the strike took a heavier toll on Pittsburgh.

"Maybe," commented Walker, "When a club's preparation plans are disrupted this could happen. But, then the strike was the same for all clubs wasn't it?"

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dick Selma pitched a three-hitter and Willie Montanez drove in the winning runs with a two-run homer in the eighth inning, leading the Philadelphia Phillies to a 2-1 triumph over the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night.

14 Go To Post In Derby Trial

LOUISVILLE (AP) — A field of 14 has been entered for Tuesday's Derby Trial, but One Eyed Tom, the Wrong Way Corrigan of racing, will stay in the barn.

No Le Haze, Joseph Straus' Louisiana and Arkansas Derby winner, heads the field for the one-mile trial, the final prep race for Saturday's 98th Kentucky Derby.

Rokeby Stable's potent entry of Head of the River and Key to the Mint; Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Gilroy's New Prospect and Lester's Jester, the speed horse in Dr. Hassai Shina's Derby combo, also will go in the Trial.

One Eyed Tom, Mike Hines' unraced colt who needed a race in the Trial to get to the Derby, failed his test from the starting gate.

In fact, he went out of the gate, wheeled around and ran behind it.

"All of my horses seem to be like that," Hines said. "I bring them off the ranch (in Nevada) and they don't want to go out of the gate. Maybe it's because I don't have a gate at the ranch. I think I'll just take the money I would have spent starting in the Derby and just buy myself a starting gate."

The Churchill Downs starter gave One Eyed Tom five tries to start properly.

"I think he was doing better each time," Hines said.

Thinclads Travel Baseball At Home

The Warren Dragon thinclads go after their fifth straight Section II win at Cranberry this afternoon while the baseball team tries to reach the .500 mark in a home contest with Erie St. Vincent.

Dragon baseball coach Don Smith indicated Monday evening that Rick Tomasone will get the starting nod on the mound for the 4 p.m. game at War Memorial Field.

The Warren-Cranberry meet will also get underway at approximately 4 p.m.

Lindsey Takes Corry Mat Post

Robert Lindsey, who initiated the wrestling program at Youngsville High School and has directed it for five years, has accepted a similar position in the Corry school system.

Lindsey will assume the head coaching position at Corry High School, a Section II opponent of Warren, in the fall in addition to teaching social studies at the ninth grade level.

Another Youngsville coach, Harvey Shapiro, has indicated that he will step down from his position as head track coach at the end of this season. Shapiro added that he hopes to remain in Youngsville.

Ali Scores Unanimous Decision Over Chuvalo

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali jabbed and boxed his way to a unanimous 12-round decision victory Monday night over George Chuvalo but failed in his vow to put the durable Canadian on the deck for the first time in his career.

Ali, weighing 217½, landed the most blows while Chuvalo seemed to get in the harder ones of the rugged battle before about 7,500 fans at the Pacific Coliseum.

Chuvalo at times expressed disgust with the dancing style of his 30-year-old foe who is looking for a return title match against heavyweight champion Joe Frazier, the only man ever to beat him.

Chuvalo weighed 221 pounds. He suffered a vertical cut on the forehead over his right eye at the start of the sixth round, but never appeared in danger of going down. Ali's record went to 36-1, while Chuvalo suffered the 17th setback in 86 fights dating back to 1956.

Referee Dave Brown scored the fight 58-51; judge Tom Keys 58-51 and judge Tom Paenessa 60-46. They used the five-point must system, with the winner of each round getting five points and the loser four or less, depending on his showing. The Associated Press scored the fight 58-52 for Ali.

Breakfast Tourney At Blueberry Hill

The Blueberry Hill Golf Club will host a breakfast and round of golf for members this Sunday morning. Ed Bello, club pro, advises all those interested to sign up or make reservations at the club by Friday at noon.

Tee times will be posted at the club on Sunday morning. Breakfast will be served at 8:00 and immediately after play will begin. The activity will be on a four-ball, best-ball format.

Bello also noted that reservations will start this week for weekend tee times.

Horseshoe Work-bee

There will be a work-bee and sign-up this evening at 6:45 for all members and subs of the Horseshoe League at the Warren County Fairgrounds. Everybody is asked to bring their own implements.

All rosters are to be complete, dues are to be turned in and sponsor fees collected at this time.

Trap League Masters

Turnabout In Fair Play

was another story as Chamberlain used his muscle to work inside and slam through two points repeatedly as Lucas watched helplessly.

Rangers Find Solace In 6-5 Loss

BOSTON (AP) — There are two ways to look at New York's 6-5 loss against Boston in their National Hockey League Stanley Cup championship playoff opener.

It might have been a heart-breaker for the Rangers, who roared from behind to wipe out a four-goal deficit, only to lose in the final minutes on a goal by Ace Bailey, an extra in Boston's star-studded cast.

Or, it might have been an encouraging show of bounce for the Rangers, who came back gamely and threw one king-size ed scare into the Bruins before bowing.

Boston goes with the first view.

"If I'd come back like that and then lost in the last two minutes," said Derek Sanderson, "I'd be so frustrated I'd be kicking lockers and breaking sticks all over the place."

Sanderson played a key role, scoring the first of two Boston shorthanded goals that gave the Bruins their early bulge.

The Rangers, of course, think they salvaged something from the loss.

"The way we came back has to help us," said Vic Hadfield. "It doesn't feel like we lost. They had us 5-1 but we didn't quit."

"Coming from behind that way should help us," said Emile Francis, general manager-coach of the Rangers. "If we get in a hole like that again in this series, the guys know they have the ability to climb out of it."

Phil Esposito, who had three assists in the opener for the Bruins, suggested that the Ranger comeback didn't really matter, because after all, the Bruins still won.

"I wouldn't care if they came back from 15-1," said Esposito, "as long as we won."

Winning, after all, is still what the game is all about and the Bruins have one victory locked up. It's a situation Francis and the Rangers would like to be in.

Asked if he would rather have lost 5-1 with no Ranger comeback, or 6-5 with the rally being shut off by Bailey's goal, Francis just grinned.

"I'd rather not have lost," he said.

Little Wilf Homenuik, the hard-luck Canadian who blew the lead in Sunday's third round, had third place alone until he three-putted the final green and dropped back into a tie at 275 with Charles Coody and Australian veteran Bruce Crampton.

Cody had a 68, Crampton a 69 and Homenuik a 70.

Arnold Palmer, the 42-year-old charger who has had his problems this season, put on one big move, taking birdies on 13th and 14th holes to move to within one stroke of the lead. But he stumbled to three-putt bogeys on the next two holes and finished alone at 276 after a closing 68.

"I was too anxious to make birdies," he said. "I went too strong for it on the first (bogey) putt, I just got too anxious."

Rodriguez, a slightly-built 135 pounder with graying hair and the slim, delicate hands, now has won six tour titles. The last one was in the 1968 Sahara, al-

Knicks' Chances Hinge On Quick Return To Lineup By DeBusschere

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Will Dave DeBusschere play for the New York Knicks Wednesday night in the third game of the National Basketball Association championship playoffs?

The Knicks and Lakers pondered the question Monday as they took separate flights to New York where the best-of-seven series resumes at Madison Square Garden.

"He's feeling a little better," a Knicks spokesman said of the 6-foot-6 forward who pulled a muscle near his right hip in Sunday's 106-92 loss to Los Angeles at the Forum. "He has a little swelling. It's on a day-to-day basis," he added. "We won't know until game time."

Meanwhile, the New York Post quoted a Knicks' spokesman as saying the chance of DeBusschere playing Wednesday night is "extremely doubtful."

The Lakers believe the outside shooting and rebounding strength of DeBusschere are definite keys to the series, along with the play of 6-foot-8 New York center Jerry Lucas.

Los Angeles' 7-foot-1, 35-year-old center, Wilt Chamberlain, took care of both in Sunday's game when he scored 23 points and hauled down 24 rebounds.

DeBusschere was hurt in a second-quarter collision with Chamberlain when both went for a rebound. He started the third quarter but had to leave when he couldn't raise his right hand to rebound.

Lucas picked up his fourth foul trying to guard Chamberlain in the third quarter and had to join DeBusschere on the bench.

The Lakers broke open a 51-50 half-time game by outscoring the Knicks 28-11 in the third 12 minutes of play—Happy Hairston pumping in 12 points for the Lakers in the quarter.

Chamberlain, the NBA's all-time leading scorer and rebounder who scored a record 100 points in a game against New York in 1962—averaged 14.8 points a game in the regular season while concentrating on rebounding and shot-blocking.

Wilt, who took only 11 shots and had 12 points in Wednesday night's 114-92 Knicks victory, made 10 of 19 attempts Sunday, but denied his offensive role was by design.

"No comment," he added when it was pointed out that the blackboard in the Laker dressing room still had the chalked message: "Play No. 5—Wilt 1-on-1 on Lucas."

Jerry West, the Laker guard who managed 15 points despite another sub-par shooting experience, said:

"Offensively, if we're going to do well against the Knicks, Wilt has to score well. We don't want to stop our running game but if we go into our set offense, we have to get the ball in to Wilt. When we do, Lucas has to be more conscious about stopping him. It simply puts much more pressure on their defense."

Bouton Sent Packing

PITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Jim Bouton has been sent packing again, this time by a minor league team.

Bouton, 33, the former major league pitcher who fell into disfavor with the baseball establishment following publication of his best-seller, "Ball Four," has been released without a contract by the Pittsfield Rangers of the Class AA Eastern League.

General Manager Pat McKernan said he had decided not to sign the veteran right-hander.

"The thing was," McKernan said, "that we felt he was not able to pitch ahead of our five starters, and thus he would have to work in long relief. Even the 10th man on this staff is young, and age has to be a factor. I'm sorry. I think he is sincere as hell and one helluva guy."

Bouton, who won 21 games for the New York Yankees in 1963, last pitched for the Houston Astros two years ago.

Celtics Will Stay In Boston

BOSTON (AP) — The new owners of the Boston Celtics' National Basketball Association team said Monday the team will remain in Boston.

Irving H. Levin, one of the new owners, said in a statement:

"My partner, Harold Lipton, and I desire to put to rest the speculation and rumors concerning the Boston Celtics basketball team."

"An agreement to purchase the Celtics was signed in New York and a substantial cash deposit was made recently. Thereafter, Red Auerbach came to Beverly Hills to meet with us and to discuss his and our plans concerning the Celtics."

"Red told us that his and the Celtics basketball home is Boston and we agreed wholeheartedly. We told Red of our love for basketball and how great an opportunity we had in becoming owners of the Celtics because he, who in our opinion is Mr. Basketball, is the general manager."

BACK TO EARTH

NEW YORK—Calm down, Knick fans. Let's be reasonable about this. You couldn't have really believed—or did you?—that the Knicks would continue to soar through the stratosphere in another of those out-of-this-world fantasies that distinguished the opening joust of their championship series with the Los Angeles Lakers. What has happened is that they have come back to earth and fallen prey to the frailties of mankind.

A week ago, they seemed to have superhuman qualities as they reached toward perfection and even brushed against it. It isn't often that anyone is privileged to get a glimpse of perfection. Yet the Knicks appeared to shoot a seeing-eye basketball in that first game, especially when Bill Bradley and Jerry Lucas fired away. They made the cords dance all night long because they rarely missed.

The result was more than a 22-point rout of the proud and lordly Lakers. It shook Los Angeles fans to their shoptops, so unexpected was the humiliation. It also dazed the Lakers and their coach-of-the-year, Bill Sharman. And it provoked a shattering play on words by an advertising man with a product to sell. He addressed his plea to the Knicks.

"Please don't squeeze the Sharman," he said.

There was no squeeze on Sharman in the second game yesterday. The Lakers beat the Knicks thoroughly and emphatically, 106 to 92. What was worse, they imparted the definite impression that they were capable of repeating the operation indefinitely, starting with the resumption of the series in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night. There are two reasons for this pessimistic point of view. One bears the name of Dave DeBusschere and the other the name of Wilt Chamberlain.

The second half had barely begun when DeBusschere ambled to the bench with head bowed. He had pulled a muscle in his right side and took himself out of the lineup rather than risk anymore damage to himself and the team. When this workhorse is sidelined, that's when Knick followers get a true appreciation of his value as their most indispensable man.

They used to think that Willis Reed was the indispensable man. In many ways he was. But then the Knicks acquired Lucas, readjusted their style and resumed their winning ways. Even Walt Frazier, also indispensable, sat out most of the play-off game with foul trouble and the New Yorkers still gained their victory.

But DeBusschere is a bull of a man who wrecks all basketball ching shops. He muscles his way under both boards for those precious rebounds. He has a deadly shot from the corner. He was the only unanimous choice for the all-league defensive team. At six feet, six inches, and 230 pounds, he commands a respect that borders on awe. Dave is a total athlete as he proved when he pitched big game baseball for the Chicago White Sox.

Can he recover in time for Wednesday?

"I'll do everything in my power to get ready to play that game," he said defiantly.

Unhappily, he doesn't have the power to cure himself or even to will his way back to health. That comes from higher quarters. If he is missing, a yawning gap immediately appears in the normally tight Knick defense. As soon as he departed the other day, for instance, the Lakers began their runaway as they outscored the Knicks in the third quarter, 28 to 11.

While the New Yorkers were losing DeBusschere, the Lakers were finding Wilt Chamberlain. Never mind the 31 points that the hot-handed Gail Goodrich scored. They were nice and they were important. But the guy who turned the game around was Wilt. Although the oversized Chamberlain has recently concentrated more on defense and playmaking than scoring, he showed what a terror he can be. Don't forget, please, that he holds two towering scoring records, a one-game mark of 100 points and a one-season average of 50.4 points. Both are staggering in their immensity.

In the opening game of this series, Wilt was clearly outplayed by Lucas, five inches shorter than Wilt's seven feet, one inch, and 80 pounds lighter than Wilt's 290. Lucas bombed him dizzy from outside with 26 points while the bewildered man-mountain made only 12 and showed little or no effectiveness underneath.

For the second game, though, Wilt began leaning into Lucas from the start and got him into early foul trouble. Often the Big Dipper would raise a hand above the rim and let the ball roll off his fingers. For some strange reason this is known as a finger roll. Often the Big Dipper would dunk the ball.

He is so unstoppable with either maneuver that an observer has to believe he almost can win this series by himself. Such solitary production can't happen, of course. But the Knicks are in trouble. And if they can't get back DeBusschere in reasonably sound shape by Wednesday, their cause may be beyond redemption. A post-season journey that began in the stratosphere may now be approaching the point of no return.

Seaver Whiffs Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Right-hander Tom Seaver struck out 12 batters in 6 and 2-3 innings and notched his fourth straight victory as the New York Mets defeated the San Francisco Giants 7-4 Monday.

Seaver, 4-0, joined Los Angeles' Don Sutton as the major leagues' only four-game winners and raised his career mark over the Giants to 7-2. Left-handed Tug McGraw came in relief in the seventh and held the Giants the rest of the way.

The Mets, leading 4-3, broke the game open with three runs in the seventh inning on singles by Bud Harrelson and Tommie Agee and run-scoring singles by Rusty Staub, Cleon Jones and Jim Fregosi.

New York's 14-hit attack included Harrelson's third career home run. Seaver, who entered the game with one earned run in 24 innings, was touched for homers by Dave Rader, Chris Speier and Ken Henderson.

Ted Martinez' single, Agee's walk and Jones' run-scoring single off starter and loser John Cumberland, 0-3, staked Seaver to a 1-0 lead in the first.

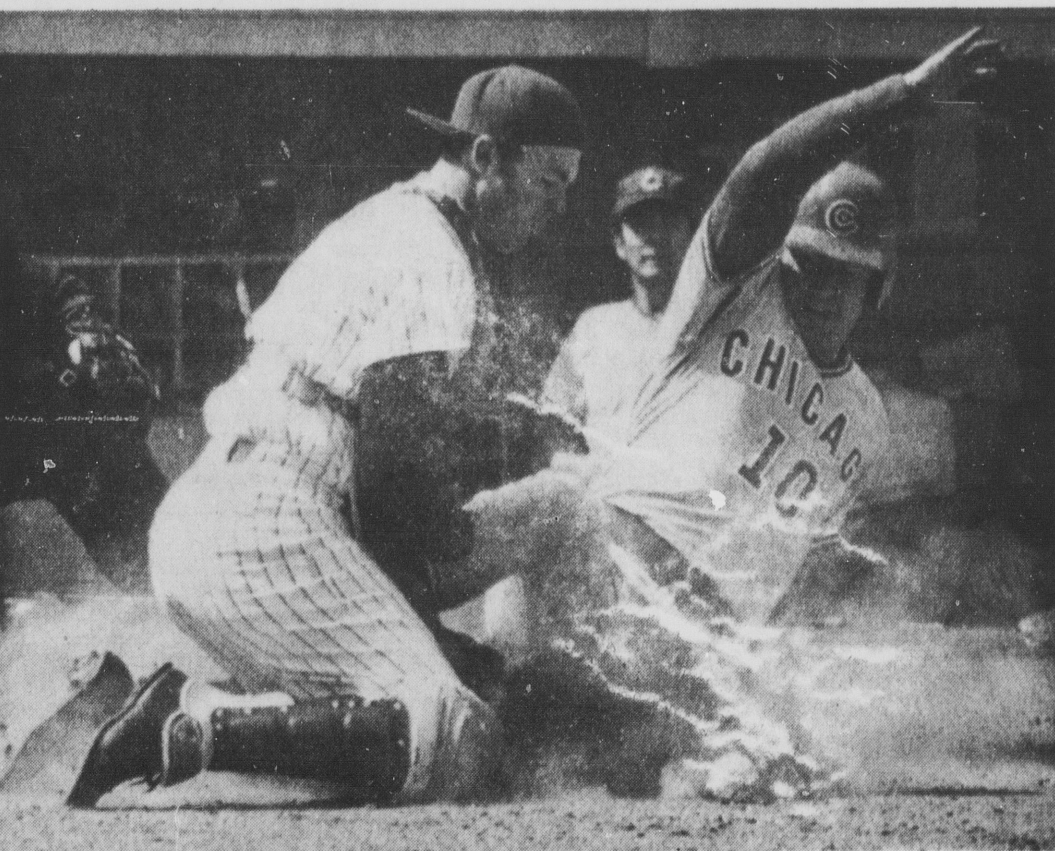

Harrelson and Rader both cracked solo homers in the third and the Mets chased Cumberland with two runs in the fourth. Fregosi's triple, Jim Beauchamp's run-scoring single and Harrelson's sacrifice fly did the damage.

Pinch-hitter Jim Howarth's single and Speier's homer pulled the Giants to within 4-3 in the sixth, but New York bounced back with three runs in the seventh off reliever Jerry Johnson.

Henderson homered in the bottom of the seventh to close out the scoring.

Keep Your Eye On The Ball

Disregarding Ron Santo's hard slide into home, the ball lies peacefully just out of Mets catcher Jerry Grote's reach. Rightfielder Rusty Staub's throw beat the sliding Cub, but Grote was unable to find the handle and make the tag.

New Stands At Candlestick Just Grand Agrees Kingman

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The new grandstands at Candlestick Park went up too late for Willie Mays and just in time for Dave Kingman.

The 23-year-old Kingman, a right-handed power hitter, was being billed by the San Francisco Giants as one of baseball's home run kings of the future.

The big blond seems to be rushing things. Through Sunday's games, Kingman led the major leagues in home runs with six and in runs batted in with 18.

"When the season started, I was worried a little about how many times I'd strike out. I'm not thinking about it any more," he said.

The 40-year-old Mays went without a home run in April, and his career total held at 646. Henry Aaron of the Atlanta Braves, with 643, seems sure to pass him any day and take the No. 2 spot behind Babe Ruth's alltime record of 714.

Mays had only 18 homers last season.

Mays, also a right-handed hitter, probably has lost dozens of possible home runs because of the strong winds that blew in from left field at Candlestick Park.

But late last season, the outfield area was enclosed with a second deck of grandstands, cutting the wind considerably.

"I don't believe those two balls would have been out last season against the wind," Kingman said after hitting a pair of homers one day against the Phillies.

Before hitting one homer, on an 0-1 pitch, Kingman had tried unsuccessfully to get a bunt single.

"I'll try a bunt once in a while to keep them honest," the 6-foot-6 former pitcher said. He's one of the fastest runners on the team.

Kingman was recruited by the University of Southern California out of Mount Prospect, Ill., as a pitching prospect and had an 11-4 record one year for the Trojans. But his hitting ability and a sore arm made him an outfielder.

He started concentrating on first base as a Giant farmhand, in a minor league career that lasted only 165 games.

Mobile-Modular Housing Bill OK'd By Senate; Demos Object

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—The Senate, over the objections of Philadelphia Democrats passed and sent to the governor Monday legislation designed to stimulate the mobile and modular housing industry.

The two-bill package sets uniform statewide standards for mobile and modular housing.

The industry has been hamstrung in Pennsylvania because of widely varying local standards, according to Shapp administration officials. By superceding these standards with state standards, the officials say, the industry plans to drastically increase its output of mobile housing to the point that 100,000 jobs may be created by 1980 and thousands of housing units erected.

The bill regulating mobile homes passed easily, 40-3. But the Philadelphia Democrats objected to a provision of the modular housing bill, claiming it would wipe out plumbers jobs. The bill passed 33-11.

Sen. Herbert J. McGlinchey, D-Philadelphia, said plumbers fear that the use of plastic pipe in the modular homes, which are built in factories and transported to sites, "will throw them out of work." He said if the piping deteriorates, factory repairmen will simply replace it, eliminating the plumbers job.

McGlinchey also said the plumbers feel plastic pipe won't stand up as long as normal copper pipe.

Under the mobile housing bill, sale of any mobile home in the state without a seal of approval from the Community Affairs Department is prohibited. The department is required to inspect and certify the body and frame designs, construction and internal plumbing and heating and electrical systems.

A nine-member Mobile

Homes Standards Advisory Commission was also created.

The Community Affairs Department would also certify the sale, lease or installation of factory-built homes or components.

Any manufacturer meeting state standards would automatically be in conformity with municipal building codes. A 15-member Industrialized Housing Advisory Committee was also created.

House Votes Against Graduated Tax

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The House voted unanimously Monday against the Senate's version of a constitutional amendment to permit a graduated income tax in Pennsylvania.

The issue was to go to a joint conference committee that will work out the final wording for the amendment, which must be approved by the voters in a statewide referendum before it becomes law.

As originally passed by the House, the proposed amendment would have given the legislature the constitutional right to approve exceptions to a general rule of uniformity in taxation.

The Senate amended the proposed to specifically exempt any income taxes from the uniformity clause.

The first state tax on personal income was thrown out by the state Supreme Court last June because of extensive system of exemptions that the court found unconstitutional. The constitution now provides that "all taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects..."

The first income tax was replaced by the present one, a 2.3 per cent levy on all personal income.

Rep. Allen Back Again At His Desk

Rep. William W. Allen of Tidoute returned to his post in the state assembly Monday, May 1.

Allen, who represents the 65th district, which now embraces a portion of Venango County and includes both Warren and Forest counties, was stricken last December with a coronary attack, has been recuperating in Harrisburg since.

He was due to attend a conference at 2:30 p.m. Monday prior to the 4:30 p.m. session of the legislature. Rep. Allen said he would be putting forth at least part-time effort to the job.

Asked about his reaction to Warren County's primary election, Allen said he had no real complaints but added that he was disappointed in what the county did to Congressman Albert Johnson. He also intimated that the Democrats could have named a candidate other than Robert Holmes.

Allen and his wife, Garnet were home for three days last weekend. He extended his appreciation for the many kindnesses accorded them during their difficulties.

Lottery Drawings

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — This week's state lottery drawing will be conducted at Notre Dame High School in Bethlehem township, Northampton County, beginning at 10:30 a.m. Wednesday.

The May 10 drawing will be held in Monongahela, the May 17 drawing at Wilkes-Barre and the May 24 drawing at Johnstown.

Boro Police Arrest Five Youths

Five youths are in the Warren County Jail today facing a variety of charges linked to an auto tape player theft that occurred early Saturday morning.

Warren Borough Police reported Monday that a Lincoln ave. resident witnessed a group of teenagers entering his parked vehicle and removing a stereo tape player.

He called the police and Officers James Urey and Richard G. Keihl later apprehended five 17-year-olds in an old shack on the top of Central ave.

While they were making the arrest the youths allegedly assaulted the officers. Urey was taken to Warren General Hospital where he was treated and released.

Keihl escaped serious injury.

The five were eventually rounded up and charged at police headquarters. Each faces at least one count of assaulting an officer, larceny or receiving stolen goods. Some face two of the three offenses.

The youths were identified Monday as Ricky Lee Wilson, 17, of an unknown Florida address; Gail Jeffrey Shaw, 17, Box 766, Warren; Robert Brew, 17, 226 Buchanan st.; William Leohard Watt, 17, 112 Sixth ave.; and Frank Curtis McGraw, 17, RD 1, Russell.

Police reportedly found several other tape players in the shack. The investigation is continuing and more details are expected later in the week.

Savitt Amends Divorce Bill; Hopes For Greater Support

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The floor leader for a controversial bill to reform Pennsylvania's divorce laws amended the measure Monday in an effort to get more support.

Rep. David Savitt, D-Philadelphia, said the bill, which fell 27 votes short of passage last October, would be put to another test Tuesday.

The measure would create two additional grounds for divorce:

—Living apart for at least one year if there are no children or for 18 months if there are children 18 or younger.

—Insanity or serious mental disorder, resulting in confinement of one spouse in a mental institution for at least three years, without reasonable prospect of discharge within three more years.

Savitt's amendment would prevent divorce with the one-year estrangement except in cases where the consenting spouses presented a corroborative witness to "irreconcilable differences" between the married couple.

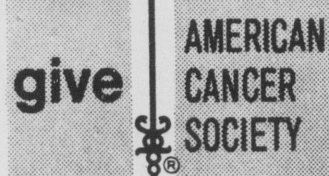

If the measure fails a second time, House Democrats plan to modify the legislation further by striking all provisions except the one pertaining to mental hospitalization.

Registration Opened Monday

Voter registration opened Monday, May 1.

Under state law anyone may register to vote between May 1 and Sept. 18 who is or will be 18 years old on or before November 8 and who established residence in the state prior to August 9.

Prospective voters may register at the Warren County Court House.
